Rise of the bloodsport gangs who stage brutal hare coursing

EXCLUSIVE by Marijke Cox
marijke.cox@archant.co.uk

HARES being ripped apart by dogs for sport has become a widespread problem in Kent, according to farmers who say gangs are trespassing and threatening landowners who try to stop the bloody entertainment.

Kent's rural community said the law on the bloodsports is continuously being flouted by groups of coursers moving around the county to stage hunts with other gangs who travel to Kent to take part and place bets.

The problem has become widespread with offenders travelling from district to district as they are moved on by farmers, or in an attempt to escape being caught by authorities.

As well as being cruel, the illegal practice damages crops where the trespassers drive across fields in 4x4 vehicles. It is also threatening a generation of hares.

Coursing, which involves lurcher dogs being used to chase and catch hares before tearing them apart, was made illegal in 2005.

Spectators place bets on which dog will catch the terrified hare first.

But Kevin Attwood, who owns Down Court Farm in Doddington, said it has continued despite the ban.

"It happens in the autumn when the crops have been cleared, and there is also a spell around March before the crops get too tall," he said.

"They use lurcher-type dogs. There are several issues; there's crop damage when they drive onto land, but the key issue is the loss of one of our iconic species.

"They breed in February and the babies are only about five or six weeks old in March – they don't stand a chance.

Retired doc's lifesaving machine smuggled into Syria to help casualties

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

AN ANAESTHETIST has created a machine that could potentially help save millions of lives around the world.

His low-cost Glostavent is being used in Third World countries where electricity is at a premium. The latest export of his anaesthetic machine has gone to Homs in Syria, which had been bombed by armed forces for a month.

The machines cost around £13,500, while a standard piece of kit usually costs around £70,000. And there are more cost savings if oxygen is pumped manually; then the price drops to an astonishing £3,000.

Roger Eltringham, a retired anaesthetist from Marden, and has spent the last 15 years developing the device which doesn't need an electrical power source. It has the ability to keep functioning if both power and oxygen supplies fail.

So far more than 1,000 units are in operation in 48 nations, and now one has been smuggled into Homs so doctors can better treat the civilian victims of the shelling and sniper fire.

Maintenance is minimal and within the capability of most handymen.

Dr Eltringham said: "We take these machines for granted here, but there are many countries that don't have oxygen and don't have proper electricity supplies.

"And, of course, they won't have highly skilled technicians available to keep machines going.

"Even in Britain, the hospital engineer can't repair and maintain them. We need specially trained electronics engineers. The chances of there being people like that in remote African hospitals are zero."

Some one million operations have so far been carried out using his machine, bringing sophisticated medical procedures to millions of people who would otherwise be left to suffer.

Dr Eltringham said: "It is based on the principles of simplicity, reliability and economy. It is a fraction of the price of a standard machine.

"Demand is high from organisations like the

SAVING ON A BUDGET: The Glostavent anaesthetic machine costs a fraction of the price of a standard one and can be maintained by a general handyman

Red Cross and Medicins sans Frontiers and usually peak when there has been a disaster.

"Word is spreading fast. I have just had a call to go to Karachi to describe the Glostavent to the Pakistan Society of Anaesthetists, and another from the US Navy who are also interested."

He chairs a charity called Safe Anaesthesia Worldwide in, Marden, to raise money to send more machines to developing countries.

The machines are built by Devon company Diamedia where managing director Robert Neighbour has recently been to hotspots in Afghanistan, Uganda and Rwanda. Of the Homs machine: "I don't want to talk about how that was delivered."

He said: "These machines have battery packs to keep them going, and they produce their own oxygen rather than need tanks of pressurised gas."

"They just get slaughtered. It wipes out a generation of hares."

Mr Attwood said it was also frightening for farmers to go and speak to large groups of people trespassing on their land during the day and night.

"To have to go and confront them can be daunting and they can be intimidating," he said.

Mr Attwood, who is chairman of the National Farmers Union's South East committee, said the problem was that gangs just moved from one area to another, meaning no part of Kent was protected.

At night, coursers use off-road vehicles and high-powered lamps to light up fields to hunt nocturnal animals, damaging crops and wiping out potentially huge yields.

And in areas of the UK where the problem has been unchallenged, there has been a dramatic drop in the number of hares.

Farmers said Kent Police were working hard to try and stamp out the problem, but admitted it was hard when covering such a large area.

Difficulties getting evidence had also meant prosecutions were harder to secure as offenders could only be prosecuted if there was a hare carcass.

According to some farmers, gangs travel from Essex to course with local gangs and bet large sums of money on the bloodsport.

One farmer, who asked not to be named, said he had been threatened when he had asked coursers to move off his land.

Catherine Barr, of East Lenham Farm between Maidstone and Ashford, said she suffered regular problems with hare coursing on her land.

"We get it all the time; sometimes we see them, sometimes we don't," she said.

"Sometimes they dig ditches so they can get their vehicles through onto the fields. We try and keep a look out. If another farmer sees them on our land they give us a ring, and we do the same.

"If they drive around on growing crops it does a lot of damage. We try and conserve plants and wildlife on the farm.

"I know there have been cases of lamping where they go out with big lamps and go shooting."

Kent Police works in rural areas with gamekeepers and landowners to address hare coursing and poaching.

A force spokeswoman said: "As a result landowners know officers will take these matters seriously and are more likely to report incidents.

"Kent Police undertakes several neighbourhood initiatives to tackle rural crime and poaching issues and operations are running across the county with close liaison with the local farming community."

Current prosecution figures were not available, but the spokeswoman said in 2008 six people were arrested for hare coursing offences and a further six people were believed to have been reported for poaching/hare coursing offences.

She said: "In addition, the National Wildlife Crime Unit is researching and analysing poaching offences in general and is building up profiles of behaviour and offenders.

"This is something that will assist local officers in identifying the overall picture of hare coursing."

Flirting Apprentice Maria says: 'I'll make Lord Sugar love me'

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

BBC'S The Apprentice is heading for our screens again, and Kent is represented by a self-confessed cunning flirt.

Maria O'Connor said she will make Lord Sugar "love me" and is happy to flirt with men to get her way... then she'll dump them forever.

The 20-year-old restaurateur is aiming high and plans to win the latest series, and will use her female charms to ensure she does.

Owner of Greek restaurant Elizavet, in Sandwich, with her mother, she said she can do "everything" in business, and even took the chance to take a swipe at her rivals saying she works in the "real world".

With Gordon Ramsay as her inspiration, she admits to being headstrong and cunning when it comes to business, and says that her persuasive charm helps her always get what she wants.

She enjoys shopping, socialising and is an adrenaline junkie.

Maria said: "There is nothing I can't do. I can do everything, absolutely everything. If you chuck me in the deep end I'll swim, I won't sink."

Maria, the youngest of the 16 contestants, added: "I turned two businesses around – made them from nothing in to a massive success. I have my own business now and I am only 20 years old. And I have a lot more to give.

"I don't believe in being given anything. I believe you have to work for everything you get, to achieve everything you want in life. Without doing it yourself, it's worthless, it's nothing.

"Most of the other candidates work in marketing, or all that sort of thing, but I have worked in the real world, you know.

"I have done it myself. I've done my other business at 19 years old, and there are not a lot of people who can turn around and say 'I own my own restaurant and bought it outright at 19'.

"I am definitely a bargain hunter. I am very cunning with it, and cheeky. And I always tend to get around people. Put a man in front of me and I will definitely get round him, no worries.

"You sit there, flirt, mess around and thank you very much, see you later, never see you again.

"With Lord Sugar, I could definitely wrap him around my finger. I could make him love me."

In past episodes, the apprentices have been in Kent – once to relaunch Margate as a tourist trap, and during another episode they visited a Kent ice-cream maker to launch new flavours.

In the new series other Apprentice candidates include a professional wrestler, a show jumper and a shark diver.

IN IT TO WIN IT: Maria O'Connor from Sandwich

Lord Sugar said: "This is not about a job anymore and I'm not looking for a friend, if I wanted a friend I'd get a dog.

"I'm looking for a partner, the 'Marks' to my 'Spencer', the 'Lennon' to my 'McCartney'. This is about me investing £250,000 into a business with one of you and I'm expecting you, as the so-called entrepreneurs, to make the money for me."

■ The eighth series of the BBC One show starts on Wednesday, March 21.

NEWS IN BRIEF

➔ David Tennant preview

A SPECIAL free preview of the new David Tennant TV drama is being held at Turner Contemporary in Margate. True Love episode one and an introduction from the director Dominic Savage will be on Thursday, March 29, at the gallery from 6.30-7.30pm. Tickets are free, but booking is essential - call 01843 233020 or email cbarker@turnercontemporary.org to reserve a place. The serial was shot in Margate and also stars Billie Piper, Jane Horrocks, Ashley Walters and David Morrissey.

➔ Head vacancy worries

ALMOST 50 schools in Kent are without their own headteacher.

A Kent County Council report reveals 49 of 597 schools either have an acting head or an executive headteacher, who runs several schools.

Some schools have advertised three times to fill a vacancy, and teaching unions said the problem was most acute in primary schools. KCC pointed to national recruitment problems and said it was looking at how it could support headteachers.

➔ High-tech treasure hunt

TREASURE hunters are expected to descend on Dover this summer after it was announced as one of 32 locations where a hoard of treasure has been hidden. Coast magazine, with help from National Trust and sat nav firm Garmin, has stashed 'geocache' at sites along the UK coastline and holidaymakers are invited to seek them out using GPS technology. Treasure hunters make a note of a keyword inside the cache and could potentially win bounty worth more than £3,000. For information go to www.coastmagazine.co.uk/treasurehunt.

Fire brigade union raises concerns at new Eurotunnel safety contract

KENT'S fire brigade union has warned of job losses and problems with safety at the Channel Tunnel due to potential changes to emergency fire cover.

Eurotunnel, which operates the cross-Channel service, is in discussions with Kent Fire and Rescue Service (KFRS) and the French Fire Service (SDIS 62) over the renewal of contracts.

The two fire services have provided primary and secondary emergency cover – the first and secondary responses to an incident – for the tunnel, which runs from Folkestone to Calais, since it opened in 1994.

A spokesman for the Fire Brigade Union, Jim Parrott, said Eurotunnel was looking to bring in a private contractor to take over the primary cover, currently carried out by specialist teams from KFRS and SDIS 62. Secondary cover, also provided by the English and French fire crews who are located in towns either end of the tunnel, involves putting out fires.

Mr Parrott said: "Cover is paid for by Eurotunnel and it's done under contract. It's been out of contract for 18 months."

He said problems on the French side with the cost of indemnity had meant primary cover could be taken over by a private company and the subsequent loss of jobs in the French and English fire crews.

"We don't think provision from a private company can provide satisfactory cover. It's a specialist role with specialist resources and equipment – they deal with very dangerous situations," said Mr Parrott. "KFRS would not want to provide secondary cover if there was a private company doing primary."

Asked whether the changes could impact safety, he said: "Eurotunnel said there would only be one incident in 50 years, but there have been four in 12 years. It would have a massive impact on safety."

But Eurotunnel spokesman John Keefe denied there would be any problems, saying it was likely the same teams would provide the cover, just under a different contract.

He also vehemently denied there would be any threat to the safety of passengers.

"There is no risk to safety and it's likely to be exactly the same people providing the cover. All emergency services would remain exactly as they are; there would be no difference."

Director of operational policy and resilience at KFRS Steve Demetriou said KFRS and Eurotunnel must give two years' notice to end the contract and are currently in active discussions to renew it with hope of reaching an agreement in the coming months. "The French fire service has also been discussing contract renewal with Eurotunnel," he said. "KFRS firefighters have developed excellent bi-national working arrangements with their SDIS colleagues over 20 years and hope to maintain these in the future."

Water companies warn hosepipe ban may last throughout the summer

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

HOUSEHOLDS across the county will have to live with a hosepipe ban until at the least the end of the summer.

The water companies' restrictions to be introduced on April 5 will mainly target domestic users. Customers will be prevented from using hosepipes for watering gardens, washing cars, patios and boats, and from filling swimming and paddling pools, ponds, and fountains.

Anyone caught breaking the ban faces a £1,000 fine.

The five companies that supply the county are imposing the ban on the same day. Southern Water, South East Water, Veolia Water, South East, Thames Water, and Sutton and East Surrey Water, say they are introducing the bans after the area became a drought zone last month.

The measures come after two of the driest winters on record. Experts say only heavy non-stop rain for weeks will ease the problem.

Veolia Water South East head of operations Gavin McHale said the ban was an essential move to conserve and help ensure a secure supply during what could be a continuing and severe drought.

He said: "In the Folkestone and Dover area we have no surface water from rivers or reservoirs to draw on, and we rely on boreholes which take water from chalk and gravel aquifers. These natural aquifers need to be recharged each year during the autumn, winter and spring.

"Forecasts show the drought is likely to continue so we need to move quickly to conserve our limited water resources."

South East water says two of its key reservoirs at Ardingly in West Sussex and Bewl Reservoir in Lamberhurst, which it shares with Southern Water, are still below 50 per cent capacity.

The companies are urging all their customers to use water more wisely and local authorities have to develop plans to make plants in parks and gardens more resilient to drought.

A spokesman for Swale Borough Council said: "We have massively reduced our reliance on watering over recent years, cutting back on bedding and replacing with more sustainable planting such as shrubs, bulbs and herbaceous plants.

"We do not have hanging baskets and have a limited number of troughs and planters."

A garden sprinkler uses more than 1,000 litres of water an hour, enough to supply six people for a whole day.

Howard Davidson, Environment Agency South East regional director, said: "We will be watching to ensure water companies follow their drought plans, and expect them to demonstrate they are doing everything possible to reduce water demand including stepping up their publicity campaigns."

The ban has been criticised by environmental groups and unions who say it is a sign of lack of long-term planning in the water industry.

Graham Warren, of Protect Kent, said: "CPRE have consistently campaigned for a new wide-ranging water resource management strategy for the South East, incorporating sources of supply with the capacity to sustain Kent and the region as a whole under drought conditions, which records suggest to be of increasing frequency and duration."

Channel diver rescue

A DARING rescue took place in the English Channel 15 miles off the coast of Dover on Wednesday after a diver found himself stranded in the shipping lane. The diver had surfaced from his dive but been carried away by the tide. Two lifeboats and an RAF helicopter were called to help. At 4.35pm Walmer Lifeboat found the diver, and rescued him from the water. After arriving in Dover the diver was checked over by paramedics but did not need hospital treatment.

Media firm chief dies

THE president of the KM Group, Edwin Boorman, has died aged 76. He had been taken ill before Christmas and "passed away peacefully" on Wednesday night, the company said.

Mr Boorman had previously served as managing director, chief executive and chairman of the Kent newspaper and media company.

He was a former president of the Newspaper Society, and in 2002 was awarded an OBE for services to the Royal British Legion in Kent.

Sir Roger's palace date

THANET North MP Sir Roger Gale received his knighthood at Buckingham Palace this week.

The Tory MP was first elected to represent Margate, Herne Bay and towns and villages in the north of Thanet in 1983.

He was joined at the ceremony by his wife Lady Suzy Gale. Sir Roger is passionate about animal welfare and was previously vice-chairman of the Conservative Party.

My Kent Big Weekend attractions prepare for thousands of sightseers

MAKING the weekend a family's big event is always fun, and this will be one of the biggest thanks to a massive giveaway of free tickets to some of Kent's best-loved attractions.

Thousands will be heading for our iconic castles and cathedrals, plus a few hidden tourism treasures across the county.

They are opening their doors on Saturday and Sunday for the My Kent Big Weekend celebrations.

People received free tickets in the event's ballot organised by Visit Kent to mark the climax of English Tourism Week.

But don't despair if you have missed out on the freebies. Visit Kent said it is encouraging everyone to join in the fun and head out to one of the participating attractions over the weekend.

An astonishing 123 county attractions are taking part.

Sandra Matthews-Marsh, chief executive at Visit Kent, said: "My Kent Big Weekend attractions work hard to make sure everyone has a really special day out.

"So even if you have not been lucky enough to receive free tickets you can be assured of a very warm welcome and lots of entertainment.

"Plus, everyone visiting participating attractions over the weekend are invited to enter our great My Kent Big Weekend photographic competition.

"Take pictures of your family and friends having a great time, or an image of your attractions that would really encourage others to visit.

"All the entries will be judged by a professional photographer and there are fantastic prizes on offer this year including two English Heritage memberships for a year for two people, and special free passes to a host of top visitor attractions across the county."

To enter go to www.mykent.co.uk and log in. Search for the attraction under 'places' and then click 'upload photo'.

If the attraction isn't listed under 'places', make a new 'discovery' and upload the photo there.

CAMPAIGN

This TWITA message is aiming to improve child road safety record

By Chris Murphy
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

THE name will sound familiar to most people, but this TWITA is a road safety campaign aimed at slashing the death toll on Tunbridge Wells roads.

It stands for Tunbridge Wells is Traffic Aware and was launched after figures from last year saw a rise in child casualties.

The council said it firmly believes just one accident is one too many, and is now determined to drive the message home.

The town hall said it is concerned about the dangers posed by traffic in the borough and in particular the dangers to children.

Cllr Caroline Derrick is the chairwoman TWITA, and she said: "In 2009, a fatal car crash on North Farm Industrial Estate involving young adults depressed me even though I didn't know any of the victims.

"It seems to me that in recent years I have read about so many young lives being cut short by something that can so easily be avoided.

"When I became a borough councillor last year I met Emma Pell, the council's parking manager who was also concerned about the high number of traffic incidents in our borough, and who also wanted to do something positive about this issue.

"We started to work together on road safety in September, 2011, and we managed to bring on board a number of partners straight away."

Several shows were staged and were well received, plus getting the message over cost around £1 per child.

She said: "The children and adults who attended showed there was great enthusiasm for continuing to promote the message and to broaden the audience, reaching out to other age groups.

"With our launch of TWITA we are planning to reduce road casualties in our borough – and that can only be positive for everyone."

Conservative MP for Tunbridge Wells, Greg Clark added: "Tunbridge Wells has a problem with traffic and road safety and we need to work together to address it.

"Dualling the A21 is a top priority which should help to reduce the number of accidents

both on the road and in the traffic displaced to other roads.

"While we are campaigning for the A21 to be dualled, I believe we should be taking any action to improve the situation here and now, including reducing the speed limit outside schools, providing pedestrian crossings and improving safety at accident black spots.

"I look forward to working with Cllr Caroline Derrick on her characteristically constructive campaign."

Fans' support (and money) helping Tom Williams & the Boat make big noise on the UK's rock music scene

By Ed Hill

ed.hill@archant.co.uk

A TUNBRIDGE Wells band is making a big splash on the music scene, and their new album will be good news for Kent Air Ambulance.

Tom Williams & the Boat will be releasing their new single Teenage Blood in April.

The band started in 2007, with friends Tom had met on the town's music scene.

He said: "I started playing solo in 2006, at the Grey Lady and Forum. I was part of about 30 people who used to play there every month."

"I wanted to get a group together and I wanted to use some of the people I had met there."

The band began by releasing EPs in small numbers which soon began to attract the attention of BBC DJs Steve Lamacq and Huw Stephens.

The six-piece were described as part of the 'anti-folk' scene, although the frontman is keen to point out this is just a small part of their music.

He said: "The folk aspect really only comes down to the fact I am a massive fan of narrative songwriting."

"It's more like Bruce Springsteen folk. We are a big six-piece band. It's not naval-gazing kind of folk, it is a classic rock sound really."

The group have been compared to Radiohead, Frank Turner, and the White Stripes, along with Nick Cave and the Bad Seeds, and have played at the Glastonbury and Latitude festivals.

They recently signed with the Moshi Moshi management company, who are behind chart-toppers Florence and the Machine.

The next Tom Williams & the Boat album has been funded with the help of their fans through the website PledgeMusic.

Tom, 25, said: "It made sense for us because SOUNDING GOOD: Tom Williams & the Boat's music has seen them compared to bands such as Radiohead and the White Stripes with their music also being played on BBC Radio 6 we have been self-supporting in our career. We have always been in touch with are fans on social media and it seemed a good idea.

"They have pre-ordered the record without hearing a note. We offer various prizes such as getting some of the artwork or meeting me and writing a song together."

"We have had a remarkable number of pledges at about £30, which is amazing in a time when people can download a track for free."

The band have also signed up a deal to donate some of the profits from record sales to Kent Air Ambulance.

Tom said: "The air ambulance is close to my heart. My sister has a heart condition and she blacked out on several occasions when she was a child."

"The number of times it saved her life is amazing, and they are not government funded. We will be playing a concert for them soon."

And the band's career is going from strength to strength. Their track Teenage Blood has been put on the BBC 6 playlist, and been record of the week on XFM.

Tom said: "Being outside of London it can sometimes feel like we are in a bit of a vacuum, but we have always been in touch with our fans who are a real community."

"We gave up on London and trying to be trendy and just let us be ourselves and in a way that is when things have started really coming together."

MEET THE TEAM: Edward Bankes and Bibek Mukherjee are the Kent half of the Pembroke College side

TELEVISION

Students battle it out in the grand final of University Challenge

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

TWO Kent students have made to the finals of one of television's oldest quiz shows – University Challenge.

Looking to get plenty of starters for 10 will be Edward Bankes, from Sevenoaks, who is in his second year studying English, and the team captain, Bibek Mukherjee, from Whitstable.

Edward, 20, is still at Pembroke College, which is part of the world famous Cambridge University and Bibek, 22, graduated from his economics course last June.

With their London team mates, Imogen Gold, a second year engineering student, and Ben Pugh, who is currently on a year abroad for his course in Russian and German, they hope to trounce their Manchester opposition.

Filmed some months ago, even senior members of staff at Pembroke don't know the result, which is a closely kept secret until the television screening on Monday.

Making it to the final meant Pembroke had to beat University College London in the semis; Clare College, Cambridge in the quarters; University of Nottingham in the second round; and St Anne's College, Oxford, in the first.

The Manchester team is made up of Luke Kelly, studying history, Michael McKenna, studying biochemistry, Paul Joyce, doing a masters in social research methods and statistics, and their captain Tristan Burke, who is studying English literature.

Pembroke bursar Chris Blencowe said: "We will all be glued to the television to see how well they do. It will be fingers crossed for all of us. We don't know the result, but are really proud of what they have achieved."

"This programme is the pinnacle of television quizzes and rivals even Mastermind."

"It would be wonderful if they have won, but it is an immense achievement for them to have got this far."

Pembroke College, founded in 1347 by Marie de St Pol, Countess of Pembroke, is the third oldest of the Cambridge colleges and the first to have its own chapel.

The show has been a cornerstone of British television since it first aired in 1962. The format has changed little over the decades and was originally based on an American programme called College Bowl, which ran between 1959 and 1970.

The show here made a star of Bamber Gascoigne. It is now presented by acid-tongued Newsnight anchor, Jeremy Paxman.

As 2012 is the programme's 50th birthday year, the Duchess of Cornwall will present the trophy to the winning team at Clarence House.

See the final on BBC Two on Monday at 8pm.

30 per cent don't know cathedral is in Kent

A SHOCKING 30 per cent of adults do not know Canterbury Cathedral is in Kent, according to a survey. Some 2,000 Britons were questioned in the survey for travel firm Journeys of Distinction. Visit Kent chief Sandra Matthews-Marsh said: "It is hard to believe some of the claims in this survey. However, Kent is a big county and none of us who live here can always keep up with all the latest additions to our many attractions."

ANIMAL EXPORTS

RSPCA chief in town over animals exports

RSPCA chief executive Gavin Grant will meet with council chiefs in Thanet next week to discuss the on-going saga of live animal exports from Ramsgate. Mr Grant will hold talks with councillors and protestors during a visit on Thursday, March 22. On the agenda will be how the live animal export trade from Ramsgate can be reduced or stopped altogether. The trade has operated from Ramsgate since May, 2011.

Salad importer to pay more than £7,000 for supplying rotting food

BRITAIN'S largest salad importer has defended its "integrity" after being fined for supplying rotten cucumbers and tomatoes.

It was fined £2,700 after marketing two separate consignments of Spanish tomatoes and cucumbers which were deemed unfit for human consumption.

At Birmingham magistrates' court, Fortuna Frutos (UK) Limited, admitted two separate breaches of EC marketing standards for fresh horticultural produce.

The charges involved delivering and marketing two regulated consignments of Spanish tomatoes and cucumbers inspected by the Horticultural Marketing Inspectorate, which is part of the Rural Payments Agency, at Birmingham wholesale market in June last year.

They found the food did not meet the minimum marketable standards allowed. The inspectors calculated 24 per cent of the Paddock Wood company's tomatoes were rotting with visible mould deposits, and 72 per cent of the cucumbers had wet rots.

Boss Jose Hernandez-Morales told Archant KOS Media: "We have a lot of integrity as a company as well as a high level of responsibility and service. Therefore, I'd rather not comment on this in view of the fact that the final result is not going to change now."

The company was fined £1,350 for each offence and told to pay prosecution and investigation costs of £4,733. Fortuna imported more than 1.367 million boxes of Spanish tomatoes into the UK in 2011, supplying supermarket contracts and wholesale markets nationwide.

Exhibitors and visitors praise success of Travel and Leisure Show 2012

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

LOCAL, regional, national and international attractions and travel were all highlighted at this year's highly successful Travel and Leisure Show, held at the Dover Cruise Terminal.

Attractions, stately homes, castles, gardens and historic monument were all represented along with cruise companies, hotels and leisure activities.

From nearby White Cliffs Country to the Galapagos Islands, the two-day show, organised by KOS Archant Media offered everything for the day tripper through to those searching for the exotic holiday of a lifetime.

Organiser Liz Hare said: "It was very well attended, especially on the second day. We saw a great mix of exhibitors and companies from all aspects of the business, from the historic houses of south east England through to the towns of northern France and Belgium, and the cruise companies whose ships navigate the world."

Saturday's event focused on group travel, with Sunday orientated towards families.

Both exhibitors and visitors were full of praise for the event, now in its fifth year.

"The show was a great success for us and one of the most successful we have done. It never ceases to amaze us how well organised the show is, not just for the visitors, but for the exhibitors too. I can't wait to book next year's event," said Roy and Margaret Jones, of GoCruise.

"We found it very useful indeed. Loved the free wi-fi which worked very well", said Jane Ellis, of Hastings and 1066 Country.

One of the features of the event was contributions from the Continent, which included the France Zone featuring history, heritage and culinary delights – which other country's tourist boards say they want to emulate in future.

Paddy Earp, of Salient Tours, Ypres in Belgium, said: "I want to say how much I enjoyed the brilliant show. It was really useful and I have suggested to Salient Tours they get together with some other Ypres attractions and take a bigger stand together next year, like the French did."

Smaller attractions also found the event extremely helpful.

Stephanie Hayman, of the Astor Community Theatre, Deal, said: "I thought it went very well and was certainly worthwhile. The Little Gem positions are excellent value for money and do make it possible for smaller, but interesting, businesses and arts organisations to participate. I'm sure that adds to the value for the visiting public."

"A great day all round," was the final verdict of John Ruler, award-winning travel writer.

NIGHTLIFE

University profs to reveal naked truth of lap dancing

By Chris Murphy
editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

THE unusual question of how safe people feel knowing there is a lap dancing club nearby is the subject of a £117,000 academic study – and Maidstone is taking a seat in the front row.

Researchers want to know if residents feel threatened knowing there is somewhere in the town where women are taking off their clothes and gyrating in front of paying customers.

The University of Kent, which is behind the study, said it was providing the first evidence of how the sexualisation of nightlife may be creating discomfort among social groups.

The team intends to explore the impact of lap dancing clubs, this will help council licensing officers and community safety groups make decisions on the suitability of the clubs in their communities.

It will take them at least a year to fully research the clubs around the UK, including the county town of Maidstone.

Professor Phil Hubbard is from the university's school of social policy, sociology and social research. He is working with Dr Rachela Colosi, of the University of Lincoln, on the project, which is funded via a £117,839 grant from the Economic and Social Research Council, Britain's largest organisation for funding research on economic and social issues.

Prof Hubbard has previously researched the regulation of prostitution and sex work and is regarded as an expert in the field.

He said: "Clubs offering sexual entertainment have become increasingly widespread over the last decade. This will be the first study of the ways in which the sexualisation of nightlife creates feelings of discomfort among particular social groups.

"While recent changes in licensing laws mean councils have the power to respond to local concerns about lap dancing clubs, there remain many misconceptions about the clientele of such venues and their affect on communities. No one has explored the impact lap dancing clubs have on the nightlife of our cities and this research will help those responsible for issuing licenses make better informed decisions."

This latest study will be called Sexualisation, nuisance and safety: sexual entertainment venues and the management of risk.

It will culminate in a workshop for licensing officers and community safety groups attended by leading licensing solicitors Philip Kolvin QC and Leo Charalambides QC.

To take part in the Maidstone study go to www.survey.kent.ac.uk/nightlife.

HOUSING

Gypsy pitches could be allocated on 'council housing' points system

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

A POINTS system for assessing people's suitability of new traveller sites could be introduced – but it has been rejected by gypsy leaders.

Kent County Council wants to bring in the controversial method which is similar to the way people are considered for social housing.

The Gypsy Council said the move will do nothing to address the issue of a shortage of sites, but KCC argue the new set of rules will be transparent, leading to fewer appeals and cutting legal costs.

Bill Forester, head of KCC's gypsy and traveller unit, said: "We're trying to make the system as similar as it can be to the one for social housing, but obviously it needs to cater for the particular needs of the gypsy and traveller community."

"We do need more pitches. We are going to have 18 more on the new Coldharbour site where building will start in May; Maidstone have got 15 agreed for funding and are doing a consultation; and we are making a further bid for Homes and Communities Agency who provide the funding, for a site in Swale."

"If all those come good, and we are pretty confident that at least three will, then we would actually have nearly 25 per cent more pitches than at present."

The points would be allocated using a number of parameters, including issues like current accommodation, the lack of facilities and legal places to live, plus any applicable health and care issues.

Swale-based Joe Jones is the co-chairman of the Gypsy Council. He said he is concerned about what he sees as a lack of commitment in getting more sites up and running.

He said: "There haven't been any new sites built since the 1990s. And now there are not enough sites within Kent for gypsy travellers."

"We need those new sites before they start thinking about points systems. There is an underlying pressure for more suitable accommodation."

"The Ashford site has been extended with a couple of trailer sites, but that was the very first site to be built in the 60s."

"So how many children since the 60s have been born on that site and had to go in to housing. It is cheaper to build a gypsy site than it is to build houses. Now there are gypsies in houses that want to go on a site with their family."

"If they did that, the councils could release housing stock and they could be used by the people who actually want a house."

Meanwhile, in Maidstone, the council appears to be tackling the very problem the Gypsy Council is concerned about.

Maidstone Borough Council is contacting landowners, agents and public bodies to come up with a list of possible new sites.

The authority is working with Town and Country Housing Group after the organisation was handed £1.3 million by the Homes and Communities Agency as a grant. The agency said the money will help them come up with 15 public pitches within three years.

Maidstone council said the sites it wants to hear about must be at least half a hectare, have access to a suitable road, be level ground, and have a named landowner willing to sell.

Mr Jones said Swale has also done something similar, but the sites found were not for sale.

He said: "Until the councillors and MPs understand us, they will always be our main problem. They use us as cannon fodder for their own political gains."

Submitted sites will be assessed against a range of planning criteria to determine if there are any which could be suitable for this purpose.

FIRE

Teen praised for saving OAP from raging blaze

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

A PAPER boy who saved a pensioner's life when he spotted the man's house was on fire has been praised by his family and the emergency services.

Ray Attwood, 78, was woken from his sleep by a smoke alarm just after 7am last Wednesday, discovering a fire in his ground-floor bedroom. It's suspected the cause was a faulty oil-fired storage heater.

But luckily Jack Randall, 14, pictured, was on his paper round in London Road, Dutton Green, at that time and realised something was wrong.

As he approached the property to deliver Mr Attwood's paper he was met by an open door. Jack saw the house was full of smoke and realised there was a fire inside.

The teenager made his way inside to help Mr Attwood, who had been trying to tackle the fire himself.

He entered the smoke-logged room and after trying to clear the smoke, with the help of a neighbour, they took Mr Attwood to safety.

Firefighters arrived soon after to ensure the fire was out.

Mr Attwood, who has mobility issues, was given oxygen before being taken to hospital with smoke inhalation. Jack was uninjured and continued with his paper round.

When he got home Jack told his family: "The most unusual thing has just happened."

His father Michael said: "And that was that, he just walked off. When we asked and he told us, we had to tell him 'Jack, that is a really big thing'."

"I am just immensely proud of him. It's the kind of lad he is, he is very thoughtful and he always has and always will do the right thing no matter what situation presents itself."

The proud father said he knows the Attwood family on nodding terms and is delighted his son, who attends Knole Academy, Sevenoaks, was able to be the hero.

Jack said: "I didn't think it was a big deal. I saw him in the house asking for help, so I went in."

"Then the fire brigade arrived, so I just finished my paper round."

His father added: "I didn't realise the extent of what he did until we got a call from the fire service to say he'd helped save this chap's life. It's great he acted so fast and knew what to do."

Watch manager Danny Barrett said: "This man is extremely lucky to have survived. Without the smoke alarm and the brave actions of Jack and the neighbour, who helped get him out, it is likely this fire would have been fatal."

"While I would praise Jack's efforts, our advice is to never attempt to put a fire out yourself - call the fire service."

Website launched for when Mother's Day is not all roses

By Chris Murphy

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

IT'S Mother's Day this weekend, but what about all those people who simply hate their mothers and dread this time of year?

Well, one Kent mum has come up with a partial solution – go to her website and vent your anger.

Nicki Chisnall, from Ashford, said there is a dark side to Mothering Sunday and claims many people loathe the sentimental approach card manufacturers and retailers take this time of year.

She said: "This particular day should be a national celebration of our love for our mothers, but for many it really is not like that."

"Of course, there are lots that adore their mothers and have a great relationship, and that's fair enough. My website is not aimed at these people and I am happy for them."

"The ones I am aiming at are those who don't have a cuddly, fluffy relationship with their mothers. In fact it's a nightmare, and they dread Mother's Day every year. It can be the same for birthdays and Christmas but, of course, Mother's Day is aimed directly at mums."

She added: "It can be a very difficult time for many people. They are dealing with the death of a beloved parent, or maybe mother has mental health problems or perhaps drug and alcohol issues. For any number of reasons she might not be around and cannot be the type of mother you see in the greetings cards."

On her forum, which is starting to gather comments, one person wrote: "I absolutely hate Mother's Day. I spent all day crying last year".

And another wrote: "I love you mummy, you're the greatest. Well it just ain't true. She's a bitch and I've got no time for her after what she did. Sorry to rant, but I'm sick of this sentimental crap rammed down my throat."

Her website is called What Shall I Do About Mother? and offers help and support for anyone suffering from mother issues.

Ms Chisnall said there are opportunities to share readers' own story anonymously and there is feedback and support from the online community.

The 38-year-old, said: "Sometimes families do go off the rails, and we are there to pick these people up. This site will have plenty of people who have gone through the same things and that in itself can be a comfort knowing you are not the only one. I will certainly make every effort to not make the same mistakes with my young son and daughter."

PUZZLE: Sherlock Holmes has to solve the mysterious death of a naked tramp found at Scotney Castle

Scotney Castle death Sherlock's latest case

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

HISTORIC Scotney Castle is the latest site to benefit from the renewal of interest in all things Sherlock Holmes.

Following BBC One's hit series which brings the great detective and his assistant Dr John Watson into the 21st century, and Robert Downey Jr and Jude Law's all-action big screen take on the duo, they are now back on the printed page in a new adventure.

Tim Symonds' novel Sherlock Holmes and the Dead Boer at Scotney Castle has just been published by MX Publishing.

Set in 1904, the book sees Holmes and Watson take the train to The Weald to address the mysterious Kipling League at a manor house called Crick's End. Then a body is found – apparently a tramp who drowned while washing – at nearby Scotney Castle in Tunbridge Wells.

But what is the significance of the body being found in a shallow pond and not the moat? And why was the victim stripped? And why, on the corpse, are there no slashes or bruises or any signs of injury?

All these questions are answered in the book, which has a slightly unusual take on the original stories by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, in that Holmes and Watson have a major disagreement, in fact several, throughout the book.

ELEMENTARY: Tim Symonds has penned new Holmes novel

Scotney Castle is an ideal setting for a story of murder, mystery and intrigue. It has a ghost, dinosaur remains and was once the hiding place of a renegade priest.

Nobleman Roger Ashburnham is credited with building it in around 1378-80 when wealthy families needed protection against possible French invasion. It was originally constructed as a roughly rectangular fortified house with towers in each corner.

In 1580, the south wing was rebuilt in Elizabethan architecture style, and in around 1630 the eastern range was rebuilt in Inigo Jones style.

The Elizabethan wing remained a bailiff's residence until 1905, but the eastern range was partly dismantled on the completion of the new house in 1843, leaving the ruin as a garden feature.

Catholic owner Thomas Darrell hid Jesuit Father Richard Blount in the castle while he aided persecuted Roman Catholics from 1591 to 1598.

Catholicism was then illegal in England and during a second raid by authorities to arrest the Father he fled over a wall into the moat and escaped.

Another Darrell, Arthur, was known as a smuggler and is believed to have killed a customs man. His ghost is said to rise from the castle moat and hammer futilely on the door.

In 1778, Edward Hussey bought the estate and his grandson, also Edward, built a 'new' castle to the designs of Anthony Salvin, from sandstone quarried from the slope below. The hollow created was developed into a Quarry Garden and contains a 100-million-year-old impression of a dinosaur's footprint.

In 1970, the estate was left to the National Trust. Now it is a popular tourist attraction, not least because of its fine gardens.

Sustaining the future of work

Spokesman for Kent Green Party Steve Dawe explains how using green energy and conservation techniques can help fill the jobs gap

THE closure of Kingsnorth power station is to be welcomed as, like all coal-fired power stations, it is a major source of pollution, specifically carbon dioxide, adding to global warming.

But where are the future jobs in Medway and surrounding areas to come from?

The cheapest single energy policy is energy conservation.

We can do everything with energy sources that we do now, and use considerably less energy. Why? Because our buildings are not properly insulated.

If every home, school and business is insulated over the next couple of decades, considerable employment will be created.

Also, every building can play a role in the production of energy. Solar water heating and solar panels can and do cut energy bills. In fact, a reduction of up to 60 per cent in energy use is possible in the UK.

What type of non-polluting, efficient and up-to-date energy production do we need in future as old polluting technologies are phased out?

The UK has the best wind regime in Europe and it is not surprising that wind turbines are adding more electricity to the national grid today than any of the other new energy installations.

Solar panels, solar water heating, ground source heat pumps and combined heat and power boilers are all examples of renewable energy technologies which may be added to our buildings to cut energy bills.

Since we import about 90 per cent of the wood and wood products we use in this country we have good reason to plant more trees. This will help our construction industry, improve biodiversity and support declining bird species.

Kent's landscape can also support fast-growing species like willow, coppicing them for use as biomass.

This can be used in existing coal-fired power stations as a sustainable alternative to coal and is already happening at the immense Drax power station. The employment potential of a larger forestry industry will be significant for Kent.

But obstacles stand in the way of a zero carbon energy system for the UK.

Supporters of old, inefficient and polluting energy technologies like coal, gas and nuclear are resisting both energy efficiency and renewables as much as they can.

This is against the national interest because it pushes up energy imports and maintains pollution.

Our greenhouse gas emissions are still growing.

Our energy bills are rising due to a lack of price controls and a very poor commitment within the energy industry

If every home, school and business is insulated over the next couple of decades, many jobs will be created to either efficiency or renewable energy.

And fuel poverty will soon afflict six million households in this country unless radical steps are taken.

If this is not done, we face higher energy bills, more deaths each year from the cold, more pollution and the immense long-term costs of nuclear waste storage which make nuclear power the most expensive energy technology ever devised.

We do not have to do this.

At my home, we have cut our energy bills with loft and interior wall insulation, and by adding solar water heating which cuts our gas bill.

Later this year, we will add solar panels to cut our electricity bill.

We need our councils and our government to take the same approach to all our buildings, for the sake of all of us, and future generations.

KOS COMMENT

Public and water firms have to play their part

WITH all five water companies in Kent imposing a hosepipe ban in April we will all have to get used to being extra careful with our water.

It is easy to turn on a tap and assume water will always be there. It might even be fun trying out some of the ingenious ways people come up with saving water, like reusing water pumped out by the washing machine to water the garden.

However, water bills have consistently increased in recent years, so what is all that extra money being used for? The water companies need to speed up their installation of meters, continue to clampdown on leaks and invest in long term solutions to water shortages. Climate change means things are not going to get any better.

Happy Mother's Day

THIS weekend's Mother's Day has its origins in ancient Greece, although the modern incarnation has mainly come from America. Whatever the rights and wrongs of marketing chocolates and cards at dutiful children it's hard to begrudge a celebration of the bond between mother and child.

Tax dodging is a cost to us all

WHEN the Budget is revealed on March 21, we will be asked to make sacrifices in order to deal with our economic woes.

At the same time, many multinational companies continue to avoid billions in taxes every year.

In spite of tough talk on cracking down on tax dodging the Government is planning on opening a new tax loophole, which will make it easier for multinationals to avoid paying their bills around the world.

ActionAid estimates that developing countries could lose £4 billion, money urgently needed to fight poverty, while the Treasury's own figures show the UK will lose £1bn a year.

When companies dodge taxes it is ordinary people who pick up the bill.

When these changes are debated in Parliament, I'm calling on our MPs to make sure the Government urgently rethinks its plans.

J Gronow, Canterbury

Give us vote on gay marriage

THE debate about gay marriage is going to blow up in our faces. This is because Mr Cameron has joined the ranks of those who want to undermine our precious British culture, already under threat.

He may – unwittingly or purposely – destroy it.

I am not at all bigoted about homosexuality – I am very much in the centre of the political spectrum.

I always realised I could easily have been gay myself. Then, if that were the case, how would I feel about it?

That is conjecture.

So I ask your readers a key question: "If your son or daughter were gay, would you love them just the same?"

I would. No doubt you would, too. So there is your answer as to how to treat homosexuals; treat them as others, love them as your neighbours.

But marriage is the union of one man and one woman for the procreation of children. Any other definition is an aberration.

I suspect this issue will become the most divisive ever dreamed up by a politician in modern Britain. And Mr Cameron will have the doubtful honour – really the shame – of thinking it a good idea and so promoting it.

Only a referendum can resolve it properly.

Geoffrey Clark, secretary, Ukip Gravesham branch, Meopham

Airport fight begins again

IN 2003 we fought off plans to build an airport at Cliffe. Now it looks like we have to do it all over again.

This time it could be Grain Hoo or really anywhere in the Thames Estuary.

Will the Government just stop worrying folks in this area again? Prime Minister David Cameron made a statement last year that there would be no new airport in this area. So what happened? How can we trust the government at all?

We do not need a new airport – just make the most of the ones we have.

A lot of people I know are finding another form of transport to take them to their holiday destination.

If a new airport were to be built it would be the kiss of death for all the villages and towns in this area. We would be unable to sell our homes.

What about trying to protect the beautiful countryside for our children and children's children?

By the time the Government have finished we will not have any countryside left in the area. They don't care because all the people pushing for this airport to be built do not even live in this area. Also they can afford to move home to where ever they like.

We should be so proud of this area with all its natural beauty. Tourism would also be hit with planes every few minutes. People would not want to visit at all.

Another worry is all the extra pollution. I thought this government was suppose to be 'the greenest' yet?

Do the Government actually know what they are doing?

I urge all your readers to write to David Cameron asking him to drop the idea of building any sort of airport in this area at all, thank you.

Diane Parmenter, Rainham

Credit where credit not due

YOUR article on the increase in midwifery application credited the success of BBC's Call the Midwife as a major factor. The Ucas application cycle finished on January 15, and correctly advised students would have had their applications in long before the deadline if they wanted to get the best chance of success.

The first episode of the show aired on the January 15, finishing just three hours before the deadline.

Our experience is that students that may have previously studied science or healthcare degrees are now considering such courses more carefully, as they attract a bursary from the NHS, thus avoiding some of the newly-raised fees (although there are changes from September).

They could also offer increased chances of employment at the end.

Kent students are fortunate to have excellent centres of study in midwifery in the South East, such as those mentioned at Canterbury Christ Church University.

David Wallace, careers and business partnerships manager, Hillview School for Girls, Tonbridge

Climate debate just old news

THE continual exchanges regarding climate change, between Roy Duff and Phil Granger are getting tiresome.

I believe it is an accepted fact, supported by evidence, climate change is occurring.

The crux of their continual argument seems to be whether or not human activity is the cause of it, or is causing it to occur more rapidly than it otherwise might have done.

One appears to be saying 'yes', the other 'no' and it is clear they're never going to change their respective positions, so the attempts of each of them to persuade the other are doomed to failure.

Christopher Hudson-Gool, Maidstone

A promise to fulfil promises

I WOULD like, through the pages of your newspaper, to say thank you to the people of Kemsley who voted for me at last week's by-election.

I look forward to working hard to fulfil the promises I made during the election, and to helping make Kemsley an even better place to live and work.

Business Week

Your business is our business

Support for small firms would drive our recovery, says FSB

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

A SEPARATE Government body with a seat in the Cabinet to defend the interests of small businesses should be created at the heart of Whitehall, says the Federation of Small Businesses (FSB) in the lead-up to this year's Budget.

Many Government departments deal with small-business policy, without one overall department thinking 'small first'.

In its Budget submission to Chancellor George Osborne, the FSB is proposing that an agency modelled on the Small Business Administration (SBA) in the US is established to ensure that the voice of small enterprise is not lost among competing Government priorities.

The FSB argues that, despite promises, successive UK governments have failed to fully appreciate the needs of the country's army of small businesses.

Members say too often the sector has seen temporary 'eye-catching' measures that have had no tangible effect on the ground, creating frustration among the small-business community.

A UK Small Business Administration, backed by political will and built for the long term, would break that pattern and help small firms drive economic recovery in the UK.

Roger House, FSB chairman for Kent and Medway, said: "The Chancellor has made clear that there will be no big tax giveaways in this year's Budget and that it is up to the private sector to drive economic recovery by creating jobs and growth.

"The FSB argues that, in order to do that, the Government must think small first by giving the UK's 4.5 million small businesses a more prominent seat within Government.

"Through implementing a Small Business Administration, it would allow the Government to quickly implement policies aimed at helping small businesses – such as credit-easing – which firms have been waiting for since the Autumn Statement. It would give the Government a channel through which it can advertise procurement opportunities and give expert help and advice on exporting as well as improve communication with small firms.

"All of this would in turn help to achieve growth."

The FSB believes that, if modelled on its US counterpart, a UK Small Business Administration could help facilitate small-business finance through measures such as credit-easing and finance to help export.

It could improve procurement opportunities for small firms to meet the Government's 25 per cent aspiration and provide speedy disaster assistance for businesses hit by circumstances outside their control, such as last year's rioting.

Critically, the SBA would challenge other departments to rethink policies that could hurt small-business interests as well as coordinate Government agency communication with small firms – a big weakness in the current arrangements.

Budget threat to our tax-free pension cash, warn experts

PENSION benefits are once again under threat from the Government, according to independent financial advisers Brunning Newman Houghton (BNH).

With the Budget due to be unveiled by Chancellor George Osborne on Wednesday, there have been a number of rumours circulating in the financial press as to what cuts or revenue-making regulations will be introduced.

David Brunning, director of BNH in Tunbridge Wells, said: "Of all these whispers from Whitehall, the two that our clients are most concerned about are the threat to tax-free cash – now more properly called the Pension Commencement Lump Sum or PCLS – and possible cuts to tax relief on contributions."

Currently, up to 25 per cent of an individual's pension fund can be taken as this tax-free lump sum from age 55, costing the Government an estimated £2.5 billion annually.

This has been reviewed by various governments and under proposals being considered by a powerful group within the Coalition – Prime Minister David Cameron, Deputy Prime Minister Nick Clegg, Chief Secretary to the Treasury Danny Alexander and Osborne – the percentage could be reduced to a fixed monetary sum, if it is kept at all.

Brunning said: "Attacking the tax-free cash has always been an easy option for the Government. It would certainly raise revenue, but it is unclear how much [and] one has to look at the long-term effects.

"This follows limitation on pension contributions, recently cut from £255,000 per annum to £50,000, and a review on the income-tax relief granted on pension contributions.

"Against a background of volatile investment markets and falling pension annuity rates, the major attractions that encourage people to invest in pensions are the prospect of a tax-free lump sum at retirement and tax relief on contributions. If the Government removes these incentives, fewer people will be inclined to save for retirement."

Manston airport sale 'a chance to introduce proper planning'

NEWS that Manston airport is up for sale is confirmation that the local infrastructure is not sufficient to sustain an airport, according to one of the most respected campaign group in the country.

Manston's New Zealand owner, Infratil, announced it was selling the site because it wanted to "refocus its investment profile" and concentrate on retail, production and supplying gas and electricity.

The move puts 123 jobs at risk. The Campaign to Protect Rural England says the sale is an ideal chance for Thanet council to put into force planning regulations protecting the interests of residents, particularly in the issue of night flights, which Infratil wanted to introduce amid fierce local opposition.

A CPRE spokesman said: "Of course we are saddened to think that existing jobs at Manston might be put at risk, but it confirms our long-standing concerns that Manston has been unable to become a commercial success for many reasons, not least its lack of infrastructure.

"Manston airport has consistently struggled to attract passengers and airline operators despite the massive amount of investment into it.

"If a fresh start means new operators are able to breathe new life into Manston, we sincerely hope Thanet District Council will take this as an opportunity to bring the operation under the proper control of a robust planning agreement to protect the interests of all of Thanet's residents.

"The prospect of intensification of night flights, while Manston airport has been unable to exploit its daytime capacity, has hung over the county for far too long."

Malcolm Kirkaldie was a member of the former watchdog Manston Airport Group. He said: "The former owners of the airport never fully addressed local complaints or issues.

"Developers who come into Thanet need to be accountable to the local community and put something back."

Backed by the bank

C J Gallard's Almshouses Charitable Trust

The trust provides accommodation for residents of Tunbridge Wells who are over the age of 55 and of limited means. A loan of £150,000 will help the trust to enlarge the existing almshouse flats and to provide six extra homes.

Martha Trust

The Deal-based trust provides homes for life for people with profound disabilities.

A loan of £150,000 enabled the completion of a new house for eight people. A second loan of £637,500 will allow the trust to increase the number of residential and respite care places it offers.

Birchington United Services Club

This is a not-for-profit social club that anyone can join. The club wanted to free itself from loans that tied it to large breweries. Charity Bank's loan of £50,000 will enable it to do so.

Hospice of Hope Romania

Based in Otford, the charity raises funds to support terminally-ill patients in Romania. It borrowed £368,000 to buy a freehold property for its fund-raising activities – a tea room and charitable shop.

British Allergy Foundation

From its Sidcup base, the foundation offers support, practical help and advice to allergy-sufferers and their carers.

It received loan finance to help with two projects: £130,000 to improve fund-raising and £105,000 to set up a 'seal of approval' system for allergy-friendly products.

Folkestone Sports Centre Trust

The trust provides affordable sport and leisure activities to people in Folkestone.

As well as the general public, it works with disadvantaged youths, cardio patients and various community groups.

It needed to refurbish the sports centre and received £1,217,215 in two loans to help with the project.

Headcorn Village Hall

A new hall had been built, and Victorian schoolroom renovated, to accommodate a range of community activities and to allow for expansion. To manage its reserves and income, the charity borrowed £400,000.

Headway Tunbridge Wells and District

A branch of the national Headway brain-injury association, the charity borrowed £300,000 towards the cost of buying and refurbishing a day centre.

Maidstone Hockey Club

One of the oldest clubs in the country, it borrowed £300,000 to finance restoration of the clubhouse building.

Voluntary Action Within Kent

The organisation offers advice, information and support to groups whose work benefits the community, especially those working in education, health and the relief of poverty and distress.

It needed new premises after a merger and a loan of £200,000 helped buy and refurbish the property next door.

Everyone's a winner as people turn to ethical bank after the scandal

By Nick Ames

nick.ames@archant.co.uk

THE reputation of bankers – especially those who continue to draw huge bonuses despite working for failing companies – has never been so low.

Depositors' funds used for speculation, toxic debts, mismanagement and bad investments have led to an estimated £850 billion of UK public money being used to bail out ailing banks over recent years.

But one company is approaching the whole issue of banking in a different way.

Charity Bank, which has its head office in Tonbridge, is a UK-regulated bank for deposit accounts only and also a registered charity that lends to charities, social enterprises and community groups.

It invests its money in loans to support charities, community projects and social enterprises and publishes details of every loan it makes. So far it has lent more than £165m to charities and social enterprises.

Interest is charged at 6.5 per cent for secured loans and 7.5 per cent for unsecured.

Almost uniquely since the global banking crisis started, it has seen its deposits grow as customers seek an alternative to established financial houses – and want to know their money is being reinvested for the benefit of society.

"We firmly believe there needs to be serious debate over the role of banking," said Malcolm Hayday, chief executive and founder of Charity Bank.

"The utility side which serves the real economy is important to people's lives and livelihoods.

"Casino banking [the practice whereby a commercial bank engages in speculative or risky financial activities with the aim of achieving high profits] is another thing entirely and should be entirely separate. We can see the results of such activity today."

FOR THE COMMUNITY: Malcolm Hayday, chief executive of Charity Bank

Charity Bank's balance sheet for the end of 2011 stood at just over £80m, up almost 20 per cent on the previous year.

Mr Hayday said: "Charity Bank has continued to grow, year on year, since its inception and to achieve a surplus just before its 10th anniversary is a wonderful achievement.

"Continued success has allowed us to give much-needed financial support to charities and not-for-profit organisations whose work is vital to the community. We are happy to be improving the lives of so many individuals and as the public increasingly choose us as a transparent alternative to traditional banks, this good work looks set to continue."

Charity Bank has benefited from consumers moving towards ethical alternatives and continued distrust of high-street banks. Since the start of the economic crisis, the bank has seen its deposit book grow by 200 per cent.

It has now approved more than 1,000 loans for organisations that high-street banks overlook; of them, 60 per cent have reached Government-designated disadvantaged communities.

The total value of agreed loans topped £26 million in 2011, with the average new loan value standing at £294,000. Of the projects supported, 40 per cent report it would not have been possible without the bank's financial assistance.

Their loan default rate remains less than 0.5 per cent despite the difficult financial environment that has reached all parts of society.

"The bank attracts investors who want to ensure their money is used for projects of community benefit," said Mr Hayday.

"There is now more than ever a greater need for facilities for disadvantaged groups and sustainable projects because of funding cuts.

"In the financial sector, the banks as a whole still have not understood the consequences of their reckless actions. Banks have a unique licence to operate and if the major ones cannot be allowed to fail they also have a unique responsibility.

"If they want there to be growing prosperity they have an obligation to communities not to be excluded. So they should offer more support for community projects and advice to customers – as well as stopping throwing credit cards and debt at people."

NETWORKING

The event where it's good (and helpful) to talk

SMALL businesses are invited to take time out to review their needs at a special event.

Kent networking group Bizlinx, along with other groups including Invicta Chamber of Commerce and Business Community Breakfast, has put together a Spring Review Event to be held at the new SUSCON building near the Dartford Crossing on Thursday, March 22, the day after the Budget.

Bizlinx - Kent director Stuart Kenny said: "The event is an away-day for small companies and individuals to take time out to reflect on their company's needs.

"The problem is that often we are all too busy working to see the wood from the trees."

As well as having solicitors, accountants and representatives from the fields of banking, IT, marketing, finance and commercial insurance, the event includes seminars and workshops covering key issues.

Training, courses and careers

Training nursery wins high praise

CHILDCARE experts have praised Canterbury College's childcare courses and new training nursery.

At the college's annual early years conference, more than 30 nursery and school workers were shown around the state-of-the-art nursery.

Facilities include areas where children can read, play and do arts and craft. There is also a kitchen where early years students learn to cook nutritious meals for youngsters.

The conference began with a talk from Professor Trisha Maynard, a leading name in the childcare industry, who spoke about the benefits of outdoor playing and learning for children.

Sandra Langley, section manager of early years and play work at Canterbury College, said: "The nursery and school workers were extremely impressed with our nursery facilities, classrooms and the examples of student work on display."

"Professor Maynard was also amazed at the size of the college and was interested in forging further links with our section."

More than 120 of the college's childcare students were at the Early Years Conference which also featured a talk from BTEC childcare and education student Chloe Hogben.

She spoke about her visit to 10 Downing Street on behalf of charity Save the Children.

Students' brush up on decoration

PAINTING and decorating students gained valuable work experience after winning a contract to decorate part of their own college.

Led by Lewis White, 23, from Chatham, the six-strong team sacrificed their half-term holiday to refurbish three classrooms and a staircase at the Maidstone campus of MidKent College.

Maidstone campus site manager Michael Smith said: "It is excellent when students get involved in improving their own facilities because they are getting employment opportunities while the college benefits from their skills."

"Putting them through a full tendering process is great experience for them as it will be crucial for winning jobs in the future."

MidKent College vice principal Jane Jones is working to establish a new organisation called Entrain, which aims to help young people set up their own businesses and bid for work.

She said: "There are plenty of students who possess the ability and work ethic to run a successful business but yet don't know where to start. We believe schools and colleges have a duty to support young people and offer them work when possible."

Virgin looking for latest intake of apprentices

WOULD-BE apprentices who want to work in a modern industry are being sought by Virgin Media.

The company has a service centre in Gillingham where some of the successful applicants to this year's apprenticeship will be based and learn their trade.

The communications company is looking for 120 bright sparks eager to work hard and develop a new set of skills.

Virgin Media first rolled out its apprenticeship scheme four years ago across the company's Networks division, providing young people with the opportunity to earn while they learn.

Since its launch,

530 budding apprentices have joined Virgin Media's scheme, with nearly 700 expected by the end of the year.

Apprenticeship schemes are now a credible alternative to the traditional college and university option and offer young people a fast track route into the working world.

They provide a means of gaining skills, qualifications and hands-on work experience while earning money at the same time.

The new 12-month access field apprentice at Virgin Media will work towards the company's own, nationally recognised NVQ in communication technology.

The qualification has been designed to help the apprentices develop a mix of technical and customer engagement skills in a short time frame, with a core focus on delivering a top quality customer experience.

Virgin Media apprentices gain hands-on experience of installing and disconnecting services, diagnosing and fixing faults as well as learning how to ensure the safety of Virgin Media's fibre optic network.

Once qualified, the apprentices will be responsible for installing and maintaining the firm's superfast broadband, phone and digital TV service for customers in Gillingham.

Peter Van-Den-Broeck, head of apprentice programmes at Virgin Media said: "Our field apprenticeship scheme is going from strength to strength, with successful applications more than doubling each year since 2008.

"We are thrilled to be offering apprenticeships to switched-on youngsters in Gillingham – it's a fantastic opportunity for us to invest in the future of the business, while offering local youngsters a great start to their career."

Virgin Media has also created Virgin Media Pioneers, an online community for young entrepreneurs to learn, share and connect with business mentors. Sir Richard Branson and Virgin Media chief executive Neil Berkett have written to MPs around the country on behalf of Virgin Media Pioneers.

They want the Student Loans Fund changed to a Youth Investment Fund where loans at favourable rates are available as start-up capital for young entrepreneurs, not just as loans to prospective students.

Travel students get a lesson at big Kent weekend

TRAVEL and tourism students will put classroom theories to the test during English Tourism Week when they head out to attractions to take part in My Kent Big Weekend.

They will meet and greet visitors and conduct surveys into levels of customer satisfaction and perceptions of visitors' My Kent Big Weekend experiences this Saturday and Sunday.

Visit Kent received a record 79,500 applications for the 16,500 free My Kent Big Weekend tickets to 123 visitor destinations and experiences available for this year's celebration of the county's tourism, leisure and hospitality businesses.

Providing work experience for young people interested in pursuing careers in the industry has been a key goal of the countywide event since it was launched six years ago.

This year the students taking part are from Mid Kent College, at Maidstone and Medway; KCollege, at Tonbridge and Ashford; Thanet College; the Future Schools Trust of Cornwallis Academy and New Line Learning Academy, Maidstone; and Herne Bay High School.

Tracey Parker, Visit Kent research manager co-ordinated the students' programme. She said: "The tourism industry offers great career opportunities for young people in a wide range of roles."

"My Kent Big Weekend provides students with hands-on experience at the frontline of delivering customer service and an insight into domestic tourism attractions. It also gives them the opportunity to take part in research and data analysis designed to help support our tourism industry."

Accountancy competition adds up for grammar school pupils

TONBRIDGE Grammar School beat off competition from 12 other Kent secondary schools in the 2012 regional heat of the ICAEW Business, Accounting and Skills Educational competition (BASE).

Teacher Josie Baker said: "I was delighted by how well our students did. I teach them all economics and try to make our lessons as practical as possible, to encourage students to apply their knowledge to real-life problems."

"The BASE competition was a great chance for my students to find out about an area of work that might interest them in future and they all thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The day was very well organised and we would definitely like to bring a team or teams again in future."

BASE links schools, students and employers together in a bid to not only increase awareness of a career in chartered accountancy and finance, but to develop key employability skills in the future workforce.

Assuming the role of ICAEW chartered accountants, the students worked in teams of six to analyse, discuss and decide on the next businesses steps of a fictional organisation before presenting their ideas to a panel of business professionals.

The runners up of the day were Hillview School for Girls in Tonbridge.

Tonbridge Grammar School will now go on to represent their region at the national final which takes place at the Hilton Metropole hotel, Birmingham on 28th June 2012.

And St Olave's Grammar School in Orpington will also be at finals after coming through the London heats.

Cheryl makes her mind up to back children's uni

BUCKS Fizz singer and TV presenter Cheryl Baker, has become the patron of the country's longest continuously-running children's university, which is run by Kent County Council.

Sevenoaks-resident Cheryl shot to fame when Bucks Fizz won Eurovision in 1981, and now she is backing the Kent Children's University.

The university's lead programme – Learning Destinations – offers children aged seven to 14, of all ability levels, the chance to gain accreditation for after-school learning and put these towards national certificates.

Cheryl said: "Schemes like Kent Children's University not only help boost attainment, but help with attendance, attitudes to learning and, perhaps most importantly, give the children self-confidence. These days confidence in your own abilities is so important, for everyone."

"I'm pleased to have been asked to become patron of Kent Children's University and I hope, if possible, to meet with the gold award winners and their families at the annual award event in July."

Learning Destinations uses local and national tourist attractions, as well as activities or projects offered after school or with an established after-school club or organisation. Each attraction or activity has a number of credits allocated to it, depending on a pupil's time spent participating.

Children with more than 30 credits are eligible for a National Children's University bronze certificate and those who earn a gold certificate (for more than 100 hours of learning) are invited to a university campus for an awards presentation.

SKILFUL KENT

FOSTERING

Open up your home with a very noble job

ARE you looking for a career that is challenging but hugely rewarding?

Kent County Council needs people who are interested in becoming foster-carers for children and young people.

You will look after, in your own home, someone else's child or children who are unable to live with their parents for a variety of reasons.

Depending on circumstances, this could be for a few days or more long-term.

A wide variety of people can apply to become foster-carers, from a range of backgrounds and age groups. Applicants can be single, couples, with or without children at home.

The children and young people need someone who will give them the love, support and stability that they need at a difficult time in their lives.

There is a comprehensive induction programme. Foster-carers also receive continuing support and training, a generous fostering allowance and money to provide for the child or children.

Vince Smith has been fostering with KCC for six years. He said: "You have the chance to make a difference to a child's life, which otherwise they may not get."

"Being a foster-carer is a challenge and no two days are the same, but the role is very satisfying."

Kent County Council has a dedicated fostering team that welcomes applicants and gets them started on the road to becoming an approved carer. You can phone 0845 3302968 to find out more.

The team is also out and about throughout the year hosting information sessions. The next three are:

■ Thursday, April 19, 7pm-8.30pm. Castle Connections, Railway Terrace/Wells Road, Queenborough ME11 5AY

■ Thursday, May 17, 7pm-8.30pm. The Bay Point Club, Ramsgate Road, Richborough CT13 9QL

■ Wednesday, May 23, 7pm-8.30pm. St Teresa's Church Hall, Maidstone Road, Ashford TN24 8TX

The event opens with a presentation about fostering, how to get started and details of the support available.

Afterwards, there will be the opportunity to speak to foster-carers about their experiences.

Jenny Whittle, KCC cabinet member for specialist children's services, said: "One of our priorities is to place children, wherever possible, in their local area so they can still be among friends and relatives and continue to go to the same school."

"If fostering is something you are considering, please call, come along to one of the information sessions or log on to our website."

TRAINING

Be positive about driving your future with a bold change

BE positive when looking for work – there are plenty of opportunities out there. Yes, it is true – trust me!

It may be that you are out of work, looking at the threat of redundancy, or just fancy a change of direction and are worried about the possible risks to your family's well-being, monthly commitments, mortgage and so on.

I would like to possibly whet your appetite to an area of employment you may not have thought about – and that is the transport industry, both passenger and freight, and the logistics that go with it.

My name is Bill Wilford, I am the MD of Kent Metro Ltd in Rochester.

We specialise in training high-quality drivers for the passenger and freight sectors, as well as fork-lift truck operators for the logistics side of the freight operation.

We have been a family business since 1963 and, therefore, acquired a lot of expertise in 49 years.

There are not many major companies in Kent who do not know about us and will happily employ our new drivers.

Once you have passed your test and gone to work, the satisfaction of being a respected team-member is enormous.

From management down, everybody relies on the drivers, who have also become the company ambassadors.

The man or woman at the wheel now has an important dual role, more than ever before. It is you who greets the customer as well as getting the product or passengers to the destination on time – confidently and safely.

An ability to use initiative and being free to use it is important in most jobs, but not more so than passenger and freight transport.

The EU working-time directive as it is now applied through legislation in the UK has in my opinion changed the drivers' role for the better.

A safer environment has improved the working day enormously.

Modern vehicles coupled with new technology have transformed the drivers' day, and where else do you get paid handsomely for sitting in traffic on the M25? If you haven't done so already, it is worth a thought. Isn't it?

The cost to acquire these extra professional driver skills is variable according to natural ability and would be assessed during a free assessment drive.

A huge factor is the skills of your instructor. I can guarantee my staff are all DSA-qualified instructors and the most conscientious team you will find in the training industry.

We offer training for HGV/LGV, PCV, lift truck, lorry-mounted crane, ADR, managers CPC, periodic CPC (Jaup) and many other aspects of transport training.

To find out more or just chat, please call 01634 255905/0800 7317277 – we will be happy to speak to you. Or you can look at our website, www.kentmetroltd.co.uk.

If we can help, we will.

ENTREPRENEUR

Nicki has designs on success with launch of her company

RECORD youth unemployment figures are few and far between, so I thought I would set up my own company," said Nicki. "Good marketing is all the more important when times are hard."

"Companies need to have the edge to get what business there is out there and it doesn't need to cost the Earth."

"We ensure clients can take advantage of the very latest technology – for example, our websites are designed to work well on all browsers and multiple platforms such as mobiles, tablets and desktops."

"Some smaller companies may not be experienced in marketing on social platforms like Twitter and Facebook and email campaigns. We can explain how in very simple terms and we want to provide a personal service."

"A good website is vital in this day and age, but high-quality printed materials like business cards and brochures are vital marketing tools, too."

"React offers an all-round package at a reasonable price or just one-off services like website design."

"We are very flexible and always happy to have an informal chat. We really want to be user-friendly."

COUNTRYSIDE

New group supports rural business

A NEW group is taking an innovative approach to developing opportunities in the rural-business sector in Kent.

Membership of the Rural Business Development & Advancement Group (RBDAG) is free and open to employers, employees, the self-employed, the unemployed and anyone considering entering any rural business, including agriculture, horticulture, countryside-management, landscape-management, tourism, leisure, smallholding, crafts, equine, fisheries and forestry.

The group meets twice a month on a Wednesday evening. It is not necessary to attend every meeting.

Meetings involving a speaker are held at Hadlow College near Tonbridge.

Abbey Court School provides a stimulating, challenging and safe learning environment where pupils and staff efforts, work and achievement are celebrated.

We are currently looking for an....

Occupational Therapist

to join and enhance our high calibre team

Medway Scale B2 - point 32 to 41 (£27,052 to £34,549)

(Full time - term time only - pro rata)

Abbey Court School is located on 2 sites; Rainham (Nursery and Primary) and Strood (Secondary and Further Education), and caters for pupils aged 3-19 with Severe Learning Difficulties. We are looking for an enthusiastic and experienced Occupational Therapist, with a professional and flexible approach.
In essence, somebody with an interest in an educational setting who would like to work in a school committed to enabling pupils to reach their full potential.

Working hours are 37 hours p/w, term time only. Candidates should hold a relevant OT qualification. Benefits include: Local Authority pension scheme, induction training, performance management programme and Continuous Professional Development. Visits to the school are welcomed.

Due to the conditions and complex needs of the pupils at Abbey Court School, continuity and consistency of support is paramount and therefore candidates for all positions will need to commit to the full working hours of the post.

This school is committed to safeguarding and promoting the welfare of children and young people and expects all staff and volunteers to share this commitment. Any offer of appointment for post is subject to a satisfactory Criminal Records Bureau Disclosure.

Closing Date: 23rd March 2012

Interview Date: 29th March 2012

For an application pack, or to make an appointment to visit, please contact Mrs
Linda Taylor, Business Manager, Abbey Court School, Rede Court Road, Strood, Kent, ME2 3SP (01634 338236), stating the position for which you are applying.

Please note CV's will not be accepted.

KENT AUTISTIC TRUST

As a charitable Trust, we provide high quality services across Kent for adults with Autism Spectrum Conditions (ASC) and their families and are proud to offer individual, tailor made, person centred solutions of support of vocational and life skill services through our supported living, residential and day centres.
The Trust encourages maximum independence, choice and use of community resources, within a supportive environment.

We are looking for enthusiastic, committed staff to provide support to people who want to live in their own home and live their own lives. The candidates need to be able to empathise with the Tenants issues and work well with families and friends who are part of the circle of support. The service is registered under Domiciliary care.

Supported Living Manager £25,306 - £ 28,421(NVQ4)

As every day is different, you must be an effective problem solver, an excellent communicator and organiser.

Ideally you have a good knowledge of working with people with autism and have experience to lead and support our excellent and experienced team to continue to provide an individualised service for every person who is paying for support. You will be 'hands on' for 2-3 days a week, must have or be willing to work towards NVQ level 4. Training and support will be given and for the right candidate this will be a dream job!

Closing date: 10.4.12

Interviews will be held on Monday, 16th of April 2012

Senior Support Worker £14,674 - £ 16,405 (NVQ 3)

If you believe that people have a right to have a life regardless of the barriers then this will be a dream job for you. Ideally you have worked with people with autism in the community or you must have at least a fascination and interest in autism. Equally important is that you are honest, caring, have good empathy and communication skills.

If you think you meet these criteria we would love to hear from you.

Training (induction week + mandatory training) and support will be provided.

Closing date: 10.4.12

Interviews will be held on Wednesday, 18th of April 2012.

For further information please contact Christine Edwards-Daem on 01634 405168.
An application pack can be downloaded from www.kentautistic.com.

As an equal opportunity employer with Investor in People status, we welcome applications from a wide section of the community. Applicants offered employment are subject to an enhanced criminal record check from the Criminal Records Bureau paid for by the Trust.

Café Manager

Our bustling and creative community café needs a new Café Manager- is that you?

Are you a confident communicator? Are you determined to deliver excellent customer service and quality food and drinks? Do you have the enthusiasm to drive the growth of the business while continuing to build a community atmosphere? Can you work on your own initiative? Can you coach and develop your staff team? Will you not just manage our café, but take ownership for the quality of food and service from your team as well as the financial performance of the company?

Does this describe you? Do you have previous experience of management or team leadership as well as experience of working in a café and an understanding of the financial controls needed to run a business? Do you have a personal licence (this is preferred but not essential)? If you answered yes to all of these then we really want to meet you!

THE KENT COUNTY COUNCIL
(ST DUNSTAN'S AREA, CANTERBURY) (EXPERIMENTAL RESTRICTIONS) ORDER 2012

Notice is hereby given that KENT COUNTY COUNCIL has made the above named Order under Sections 9 and 10 of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984, and of all other enabling powers, and after consultation with the chief officer of police in accordance with Paragraph 20 of Schedule 9 to the Act:

The Order, which will be in force for a maximum experimental period of 18 months, will:

- Prohibit all motor vehicles from passing beneath the West Gate.
- Prohibit southeast bound traffic on St Dunstan's Street between Westgate Grove and St Peter's Place except for buses and taxis.
- Restrict traffic passing to the side of the West Gate to single file by the use of traffic signals, allowing all vehicles to pass northwest bound and buses and taxis only southeast bound.
- Restrict southeast bound traffic on lower St Dunstan's Street and southwest bound traffic on North Lane to buses, taxis, cycles and vehicles requiring access.
- Close Pound Lane at its junction with St Dunstan's Street, except for cycles.
- Introduce a 20mph speed limit in lower St Dunstan's Street, Linden Grove and the Whitehall Road area, North Lane and part of St Peter's Place.

- Introduce a 7.5T weight limit, except for loading, on all roads within the city walls, Northgate, London Road, St Dunstan's Street, Whitstable Road and A290 to its junction with A299 Thanet Way.
- Remove parking bays in lower St Dunstan's Street.
- Relocate taxi rank from St Dunstan's Street to North Lane.

The Order was made on 16 March 2012 and will come into force on 27 March 2012.

The Highway Authority will be considering in due course whether the provisions of this experimental Order should continue in force indefinitely.

Any alterations to this Order which will render it less restrictive may be authorised by the Transportation Manager, without the requirement to re-advertise the Order, under section 10(2) of the Act, and after consultation with the chief officer of police.

Full details are contained in the Order which, together with the relevant plans, and a statement of the Council's reasons for making the Order, may be examined at the offices of Canterbury City Council, Military Road, Canterbury, CT1 1YW or at Ashford Highway Depot, Kent County Council, Javelin Way, Ashford, TN24 8AD.

Representations to this Traffic Order should be made in the first 6 months of the experimental period. If you wish to support or object to the Experimental Order you should send the grounds for your objection in writing to the Transportation Manager, Kent County Council, Ashford Highway Depot, Javelin Way, Ashford TN24 8AD or by email to td.eastkent@kent.gov.uk by noon on Friday 14 September 2012

Subbuteo

Tabletop favourite gets a reboot

For generations, dads and sons alike could re-create the thrills of football through the finger-flicking fun of Subbuteo. Now, after years away from our toy shops, it's back. By Nick Ames.

AN ICONIC game invented in Kent is getting a 21st-century revamp as Subbuteo table-football this weekend hits the stores again.

The first three teams from the Premier League to be made available for 'flick to kick' fans are Premiership giants Chelsea, Liverpool and Manchester United.

Under agreements between the clubs and manufacturer Paul Lamond Games, all are officially-licensed products, with squad numbers and shirt-sponsor logos on each player.

England, Scotland and Republic of Ireland teams are also available, and more are promised as the 2012-13 season starts.

Toy stores and branches of Waterstones are among the stockists of a game once billed as "the replica of Association Football" and in which players flick small figures on semi-circular bases to propel a ball into a plastic goal.

Rules follow football regulations as closely as possible – even offside is a factor. And this year the tabletop game will have its own World Cup, with matches taking place in the plush facilities of Manchester City's Etihad Stadium.

The new hi-tech 'footballers', which can be made to spin and swerve, are a far cry from the earliest form of the game.

Its name is derived from Falco subbuteo – a bird of prey more commonly known as the hobby – and was coined by its creator Peter Adolph, of Langton Green, near Tunbridge Wells.

Sets first became available in 1947 and consisted of goals made of wire with paper nets, a ball made of cellulose and two teams of cardboard players, one in red shirts with white shorts, and their opponents in blue shirts with white shorts. These two-dimensional figures had to be inserted into bases made from buttons weighed down with lead washers.

No pitch was provided – instead chalk was provided, along with instructions on how to turn an old army blanket into a playing surface.

Later variations saw increasingly-detailed and intricately-painted plastic players and a huge number of accessories, including fans, stands, floodlights and such oddities as a St John's Ambulance team with a stretcher.

Every major club strip was re-created, although individual teams were not identified until the late years of the game's popularity in the 1990s.

Richard Wells is sales director of the company behind the relaunch.

He said: "The initial market is undoubtedly going to be dads. I'm a father myself and wanted to introduce it to my sons, so I think we shall see fathers buying it for their children and kids buying it for their dads."

"We realise children won't immediately put down their computers and start playing table-football. But, of course, we hope the younger people fall in love with it just as their parents did."

The relaunch also sees a range of generic team strips, a referee and spare balls available, along with the officially-licensed club sides.

Further teams, most likely Spurs, Arsenal, Manchester City, Celtic and Rangers, will be available in August when the company finalises its agreements with the clubs over matters such as exact strips and correct shirt-sponsors. Others will follow over the next couple of years.

Although individual stars are not exactly represented, each team has multi-racial players and a range of hairstyles. The bases have also been improved to make the players more manoeuvrable and they are also far more sturdy – the older plastic models were prone to being snapped.

Wells said: "Subbuteo was always a great game, and it remains a great game. In fact it is now much better. The quality of the playing area is vastly superior and the production techniques used mean there is a far wider range of players – some even wear different-coloured boots."

In its heyday the game was a part of popular culture – for example, pop-punk band The Undertones referenced it in My Perfect Cousin.

Curator Ian Beavis said: "Subbuteo is a very popular local invention and people of a certain age have fond memories of playing it, so it is very pleasing to see it back."

A display featuring the origins of the game is on show at Tunbridge Wells Museum, open Monday-Saturday from 9.30am-5pm and Sunday from 10am-4pm.

Don't head for the brightest lights when you're in search of the best STURRY hosts what must be one of the less bustling high streets in the land. That much was evident on the Saturday evening I strolled through with a guest, passing precisely no one.

Given, however, the atmosphere that can hang over such places at such times, this is perhaps no bad thing. And, truth be told, there is not an abundance of venues to draw folk, of any disposition, to Sturry high street after dark.

A fast-food takeaway and mini-supermarket, in fact, are pretty much the sum of it. That and possibly the finest restaurant in east Kent.

Its name is Kathton House, a pleasantly understated venue that doesn't bellow claims of greatness or force itself on the collective psyche other than through the quality of its food.

Which is, quite simply, excellent.

Neither overly complex nor unimaginatively familiar, our meals could not have been faulted at any point during our visit, which was a joyous experience in every way.

The presentation was exquisite, the service friendly and warm (I was even offered a pair of glasses as, still in denial over my failing eyesight, I struggled with the menu) and the surroundings genial.

Feeling instantly at ease, we got under way with some excellent bread before our starters really had the show on the road. My warm smoked duck breast salad with raspberry dressing was exquisite. I'm a fan of both duck and raspberry, so perhaps a combination of the two was never going to go wrong, but we all know life is rarely that simple...

My companion's selection of caramelised shallot, beetroot, French bean and dolce latté cheese salad with balsamic vinegar dressing was, given the wider array of ingredients, perhaps more vulnerable to a mismatch. Again, though, the result was a total success.

An excellent and manageable choice of main courses (with strong vegetarian options) gave only one problem: which to choose? I went for roast rack of Monkshill Farm lamb in rosemary and redcurrant jus served with potato Anna.

Top-quality meat in a lovely sauce was complemented perfectly by a first for me... potato Anna, which, for those who don't know, is layered potato cooked in butter (think potato Dauphinoise without the cream).

My companion wanted fillets of John Dory in dill and saffron sauce with sautéed new potatoes... with no dill. Fortunately, and rightly, it was possible to drop it. Happy days.

Dessert was forced rhubarb, crème patissiere tartlet served with stem ginger ice-cream (her) and Cointreau parfait with orange and mango salad (me). Both were brilliant, mine in particular a riotous explosion of taste.

At this point I must confess to a little unease with what has just gone before. During the course of my many reviews, I have been unfailingly honest, sparing no sensitivities when necessary. So, reading this unrestrained eulogy, I wonder if I've lost that necessary edge. But no, I haven't... I simply couldn't find fault.

Dave Mairs

• The two-course dinner menu is priced at £33.50 per person, with three courses £40.50.

FARMERS' MARKETS

DARTFORD: The farmers' market is held in the pedestrian area of Dartford high street and open to the public between 10am and 2pm on the third Friday of the month. Produce available includes meat, bread, plants and preserves.

MERSHAM: A market is now held at the Farriers Arms, Mersham Forstal, between 2.30pm and 6.30pm on every second and fourth Friday of the month, featuring top-quality produce. It is a newcomer to the increasing number of markets but is proving very popular.

HORSMONDEN: Horsmonden farmers' market, held every other Friday, has some 20 stalls, covering a range of produce including meat, game, poultry, eggs, cheese, fruit and vegetables, bread, jams and pickles, honey, prepared pies, pastries, cakes and bakes.

BRIDGE: The market at the Red Lion Inn, Bridge, on the second and fourth Saturdays of the month aims to give shoppers the opportunity to buy high-quality, nutritious, fresh local food and drink which contributes to their well-being and protects their environment.

HYTHE: Hythe farmers' market was established in March 2004 and is now located in the Methodist church hall, between Chapel Street and Prospect Road. It is open on the second and fourth Saturdays of the month from 10am to midday.

ELHAM: The Elham market is held on the second and fourth Sundays of the month in the Rose and Crown pub, from 10am to midday. It offers a selection of fruit and vegetables, eggs, cheese, fresh meat, bread, cakes, honey, jams and wine.

Meet new kids on the block Star goats

Beech Court Gardens, Challock
From Sunday, March 18
01233 740735
www.beechcourtgardens.co.uk

TWO young goats, Fred and Wilma, are awaiting visitors to Beech Court Gardens for the season's start this weekend. The nine-month-old pair, who can be petted and fed by children, are from the Lord Whisky Sanctuary Fund, which is a lifeline for many animals. Beech Court visitors can also see rare-breed chickens wandering the 10 acres of gardens that surround a 15th-century farmhouse. Spring heralds a show of daffodils, followed by rhododendrons, azaleas and viburnums, which give way to climbing roses in June. The summer brings herbaceous plants and an impressive collection of hydrangeas. The site dates back to Saxon times, suggested by the discovery of Roman swords and artefacts, and the house dates back to 1415. The gardens are open from Saturday to Thursday between 10.30am and 5.30pm. Entry is £5 for adults and £1 for children.

An age-old love story Verdi's La Traviata gets the full works

The Orchard Theatre, Dartford
Sunday, March 25, 7.30pm
01322 220000
www.orchardtheatre.co.uk

A TRAGIC tale of passion and memorable music, La Traviata is Verdi's interpretation of one of the most popular love stories of the 19th century, La Dame Aux Camelias. The award-winning opera- and ballet-producer Ellen Kent brings the new production of Verdi's La Traviata, featuring the Ukrainian National Opera of Kharkiv, including soprano Maria Tsionina, in the lead role of Violetta. The highlights include the Brindisi, the best-known drinking song in opera, the duet Un Di Felice and Violetta's haunting aria Addio Del Passato. With a full orchestra, stunning sets and costumes, this is one performance opera fans should not miss. Tickets cost £25.50, £28.50 and £33.50. Groups of 10 or more can get 20 per cent off, while pre-show dining is available before the show.

Celebrate country life Game and equine fest

Kent County Showground, Detling
Saturday and Sunday, March 24-25
01392 421500; www.contour.uk.net

IT is that time of year again for the Kent Game And Equine Festival at Detling. This year the outdoor Supreme Equine Arena will feature an Australian Horsemanship parade and a fast-paced Pony Club Horse & Hound showjumping challenge. Events include a BASC shooting school, gundog scurries, terrier and lurcher shows, fly-casting demonstrations, archery, falconry, racing ferrets and the Game Cookery Theatre. A countryside and equestrian shopping village will be hosting more than 100 retail outlets.

Railway art ... but not just for train buffs

Historic Dockyard, Chatham
Opens Saturday, March 31
01634 823815
www.thedockyard.co.uk

THE Historic Dockyard in Chatham, famous for its steam and diesel locomotives, will be presenting an eclectic collection of artwork from The Guild Of Railway Artists, including leading wildlife artist David Shepherd. The RailArt exhibit will be shown in the No 1 Smithery from Saturday, March 31, until the end of May. The Dockyard Trust's Alex Patterson said: "We are thrilled. The dockyard, and in particular our award-winning No 1 Smithery, is an appropriate venue for such significant works of art. "These evocative pictures explore a variety of styles and themes that will appeal to not only railway enthusiasts but to the wider public."

New Romney Caravan Park, Clark Road, Greatstone,
New Romney TN28 8PB

www.newromneycaravanpark.co.uk

New Romney Caravan Park is situated on the South Kent coast in a quiet and peaceful spot just 300 yards from the sea. The Park is a family owned which offers a safe and family friendly environment. Also accessible to Olympics and Diamond Jubilee events, New Romney Caravan Park is everything that's wonderful about a family caravan holiday by the sea.

The Park is gated, well laid out with lots of space between the holiday caravans, with a small community clubhouse and adventure play area. Well behaved dogs are welcome and there is a good size dog walking area.

If you want to relax and unwind and enjoy the great outdoors then New Romney Caravan Park is right for you. The Park has won the coveted Gold Bellamy Award no less than 7 years running and takes pride in raising awareness of the natural environment to its visitors.

The Park offers rental caravans for short breaks or a full family holiday and many holidays throughout the year are at 2011 prices or less. Caravan holiday homes are designed with all home comforts as part of the package and are perfect for both couples and larger families.

For those who want even more and the flexibility to get away whenever they want the Park always has a great selection of both new and used caravans for sale with prices starting from only £8995 ready to move into! A holiday home at New Romney Caravan Park will give you years of family pleasure and many happy memories.

New Romney Caravan Park is proud of the service they provide to both individual caravan owners and holidaymakers alike.

So if you have been thinking about owning a holiday caravan of your own, or a holiday by the sea, now is an excellent time to spot a bargain. Why not give them a call or have a look around soon. Or perhaps visit the new coffee shop opening this season. The friendly team at New Romney Caravan Park will be delighted answer your questions or show you this tranquil park and the holiday homes that are available.

The Osmonds The brothers' final UK tour

Winter Gardens, Margate

Tuesday, March 20, at 7.30pm 01843 296111
margatewintergardens.co.uk

FOR more than five decades The Osmonds have been entertaining crowds across the globe and this year marks their biggest-ever UK Tour. Fans will journey through their many unforgettable hits, including One Bad Apple, Down By The Lazy River, Love Me For A Reason and the rocky Crazy Horses.

And then, of course, there's the 1972 No 1 hit for Jimmy, Long Haired Lover From Liverpool. "We truly want this tour to be a great big thank-you to all our fans for their love and support through the years," said Jimmy.

"This final tour takes us all around the UK and allow us to get up close and personal with our fans – we can't wait." The group recorded 200 albums, selling 100 million copies worldwide. Tickets are priced from £27.50.

Rock comedy Steve Hughes coming solo

Trinity Theatre, Tunbridge Wells
Saturday, March 17
01892 678678

FOLLOWING sell-out shows at the Sydney, Adelaide and Melbourne comedy festivals and stellar performances on Michael McIntyre's Comedy Roadshow (BBC One), Australian comic Steve Hughes will be embarking on his long-awaited debut solo tour in 2012. The show, Big Issues, takes in 42 dates, including a show at the Trinity Theatre. Hughes joined Reginald D Hunter as a special guest on his mammoth nationwide tour playing to tens of thousands of people nationwide during 2011. A former heavy-metal drummer, Hughes quickly made a name for himself as a highly-opinionated and provocative performer. See www.trinitytheatre.net for more details.

Amazing, living iPod Derek Paravacini

The Tower Theatre, Folkestone
Saturday, March 31, at 8pm
01303 223 925
www.towertheatrefolkestone.co.uk

THE amazing Derek Paravacini has been described as a living iPod offering a data bank of music in his mind ready to be performed to a live audience. The virtuoso pianist was born blind and is also autistic, but his musical wizardry has made him the focus of several TV programmes including the documentary Extraordinary People. From Bach to boogie-woogie, you name it and Paravacini can play it. He has already been called to play with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and at Downing Street for the Prime Minister. He is equally brilliant in any key and any music genre and takes random requests as proof. Tickets are priced at £15.

Don't skip the seaside beat Rizzle Kicks

Leas Cliff Hall, Folkestone
Monday, May 7
0844 8713015
www.atgtickets.com

HARLEY Alexander-Sule and Jordan Stephens, aka Rizzle Kicks, are two of the most exciting young musicians in the UK right now. Their debut single Down With The Trumpets sold 250,000 copies and stayed in the top 10 for a month. The duo have already been nominated for three MOBO Awards and featured on the No 1 single Heart Skips A Beat with Olly Murs. They describe their debut LP as a mix of pop and old hip-hop and have already taken this year's Brits by storm. Following such an electric start to their career, the pair are widely expected by those in the know to have a very productive 2012. Tickets for their Folkestone gig are priced at £13.50.

Bovis extends the stamp-duty holiday

KENT housebuilder Bovis Homes has decided to extend the Government's stamp-duty holiday on its homes in the county by three months – and expand its scheme so it is not only first-time buyers who benefit.

The Government has called time on the holiday, which has allowed first-time buyers to avoid paying 1 per cent stamp duty on properties priced between £125,000 and £250,000, with the scheme ending next weekend.

However, Bovis Homes is keeping the holiday spirit alive at its developments at Chestnut Place in Ashford, Abbey Place in Minster and Meadowbank in Great Easthall Farm, Sittingbourne, with a new stamp-duty scheme that also includes owner-occupiers.

With the new purchase assistance initiative, the housebuilder is offering to pay the stamp duty on homes that are reserved in that price bracket from Sunday, March 25, as long as the purchase is completed by the end of June.

"The holiday has clearly proved popular with first-time buyers and we have had a surge of interest," said Bovis Homes marketing director Kevin Wilkins. "Taking advantage of this could represent a significant saving for the buyer – up to £2,500 – so there is a real incentive to get moving now and complete before the end of June."

Transform your garden with a bamboo gazebo

By Gary Wright

BAMBOO is a remarkable material, and beautiful garden gazebos offer both a flavour of the Orient and a unique outdoor building.

They can be as small or as large as your garden demands and can be constructed as an outdoor bar, a home for your hot tub, a family room for meals... or simply a place for relaxation.

MJS is Britain's leading builder of bamboo gazebos and the company will be exhibiting at The Great British Home Show 2012 from Thursday, May 31, to Monday, June 4, at the South East's new £62 million exhibition centre, Glow.

For many customers, the gazebo becomes their favourite part of the home.

The enthusiasm of MJS's Peter Spencer for the gazebos is infectious as he talks about the unique garden buildings: "I started bringing in bamboo furniture from the Philippines in 2000 and after a couple of years I developed the gazebo after examining the material."

Bizarrely, the smoking ban was one of the inspirations behind this most attractive garden building.

"The gazebo is ideal for a smoking area where people can have a drink, eat and at the same time smoke as the structure is open and seats up to 10 people under cover – but still outside.

"We built them for pubs and restaurants, but then we began to get orders from people who wanted one in their own home. We came up with a range of designs to suit gardens of all sizes, and the real beauty is that the bamboo itself allows us to build exactly what people require."

Bamboo is a tough material used to build homes across southern Asia. As one of the strongest and most useful natural woods, it is hard-wearing while, importantly, retaining flexibility.

It is also one of the fastest-growing plants in the world – botanists have recorded one metre of growth in just 24 hours – and across east and south Asia it has been a vital part of the economy for building materials... and even food.

It is enormously durable and there are 70 types, but amazingly it is still a mystery to botanists. Some types of bamboo will not flower for many years – the longest gap is 130 years – and then all individuals flower within a few years, wherever they are in the world.

One of these unique gazebos, designed to your specification and built in your garden, costs far less than a conservatory and slightly more than a large garden shed.

To find out more, have a look at the MJS website <http://mjs-trading.co.uk/> and of course you can visit MJS at The Great British Home Show 2012 at Glow, Bluewater, Kent.

Dream...Homes

Move on right side of the tracks with new seaside home

STATION Cottages in the seaside town of Walmer is the perfect place to be for anyone looking for a gem of a new home.

Tucked away, off the main road in a quiet spot by the station, these family-friendly detached homes are just waiting for a buyer to step forward.

Attractively designed to incorporate the architectural details of the local station, brick arches and detailing, arched windows and slate tiles all add to the appeal of these three-bedroom homes.

The living room and the kitchen/dining room have French doors leading on to the landscaped rear garden. Householders can choose whether to include an en-suite or have extra space in the master bedroom, and the bathrooms have stylish features included such as a marble basin stand in the main bathroom.

Wooden flooring, carpets and integrated appliances are all included.

The garden has a useful decked patio area, plus there are two parking spaces – all a new homeowner needs to do is unpack their suitcases and start enjoying life near the sea.

This quiet coastal town has long stretches of unspoilt shingle beaches, a good range of shops is close by and, of course, the station is on hand, with services to Dover, Ramsgate and Canterbury. London St Pancras is about an hour and 40 minutes away, with a change at Dover.

Nearby Deal still remains an unspoilt seaside resort where shoppers can buy fresh fish from the town's fishermen and there is also a variety of interesting shops to discover.

Housebuilder pleased as enticing offers see big hike in house sales

SALES of new properties in Kent are showing a marked upturn and Hillreed Homes has reported an increase in sales of 22 per cent over the same period last year.

Jo Richards, marketing and corporate manager at Hillreed, said: "We are experiencing a sort of 'spring' market earlier than usual in the selling calendar."

The company has put this down to the unusually mild weather that has brought eager buyers to sites... or maybe the enticing offers that Hillreed produces at this time of the year.

Hillreed emphasises that people who want to be part of this upsurge in property purchases should act now, with offers available such as a £10,000 discount for plot 104, the last remaining two-bedroom apartment at Greenway, Kings Hill.

This property is also

'turnkey' ready, so everything from beds and bedding to sofas and cutlery is included.

Or there is an option to benefit from a 15 per cent equity share on this property, which is priced at £192,950

There are two semi-detached, three-bedroom houses at the same location, each with a £10,000 discount, and opportunities for part-exchange exist on most properties at many Hillreed developments.

Hillreed says the positive figures are heartening and perhaps these are the 'green shoots' of economic recovery that the UK is looking for. If so, the company says buyers need to be quick if they want to secure a new property at an amazing price.

■ Go to www.hillreed.co.uk for further information on the spring sales and incentives, or call at the show homes, which are open seven days a week.

Enjoy town-centre living on the riverside

THIS weekend Kier Homes will unveil the latest of its much-anticipated riverside show apartments at its Blue Quarter development in the centre of Maidstone.

The new apartment launches the latest and final phase of the development, which offers buyers the chance to experience the special ambience and beautiful views that come from living alongside the Medway and yet be just a stone's throw from the town centre.

Ideally situated in the centre of Maidstone, Blue Quarter is within an easy walk of the station and of the shops and restaurants, making the development a perfect location for anyone seeking a new home in the town.

The new two-bedroom show apartment is stunningly appointed and offers house-hunters two bathrooms, a separate kitchen and a large living room that opens on to a balcony overlooking the river.

Alexis Bissett, marketing manager at Kier Homes, said: "This weekend's launch represents the final phase of Blue Quarter. Once these apartments have gone, there won't be another chance to buy at this much sought-after development.

"I am delighted to say the combination of riverside views and the proximity of the town centre continues to prove popular with all our customers."

Anyone wanting to visit the new riverside show homes or who seeks further information can phone the Kier Homes team on 0800 883 8362 or visit kierhomes.co.uk.

Monaco Musical Fireworks

Escorted Rail Holiday from London, Ebbsfleet & Ashford
4 Days

Quote MR7-KOS
£459pp

7 July, 2012

Travelling by Eurostar train from London St Pancras, then the swift TGV to train to Nice on the French Riviera, the journey on this holiday promises to be as exciting as the places we will visit.

The TGV train heads effortlessly south through serene landscapes before encountering the alluring scenery of the Cote d'Azur - yacht-filled harbours, beaches, rocky inlets and millionaires' villas.

Our destination is Nice, the region's capital, where we spend 3 nights.

The pinnacle of the weekend is a day spent in neighbouring

Fireworks light up Monaco's Port Hercule harbour

Monaco, taking in the famous sights including Monte Carlo Casino, Café de Paris and the old city on the Rock of Monaco. Our visit also takes in a spectacular Musical Fireworks display over Port Hercule Harbour.

At the end of the holiday we return to the UK by train from Nice.

INCLUDED:

- Escorted throughout
- Return Eurostar & TGV rail travel London St Pancras to Nice (from Ebbsfleet/Ashford on request)
- 3 nights hotel B&B in Nice
- Return coastal train Nice to Monaco

European unveiling for the Kia Ceed's next generation

Driving carsforkent.co.uk

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

IT'S a German thing – this habit of describing a facelift model as 'the new generation' when it patently is not.

Still, we might forgive Audi on the occasion of the makeover for its major breadwinner, the current A4 launched in 2008.

There's a lengthy list of new things to note: apart from the cosmetics from a re-shaped bonnet, bumper, grille and headlamps, the engines have been fettled to produce impressive fuel and emissions improvements including start/stop on all units.

Perhaps most surprising is it's all been achieved in a climate of spiralling costs by raising prices just £200 a car – the range starts at £23,625.

Audi has also executed the changes at the same time across the entire range, from the big-selling saloon and Avant (estate) models to sporting S4 and S4 Avant variants and the chunkier Allroad quattro all-wheel drive estate.

There is no doubt that without radically changing the look of the range to the point where owners of the 2008-12 versions would be brassed off and see residuals falling, the new-look A4 has more visual impact – Avant models being particularly sharp.

Nor will those owners grumble about the A4's acclaimed chassis being upgraded; it hasn't and probably didn't need to, since the '08 car marked a point where this front-wheel drive executive star silenced traditionalists lauding its rear-driven German rivals, the Mercedes-Benz C-Class and BMW 3-Series.

For the A4 marries well-balanced handling and a good ride, as well as cruising quietly on motorways.

With money tighter than ever though, 'previous generation' owners may grumble – or upgrade – after hearing the gains made on running costs. In the most eco-friendly version, the £26,555 136PS (134bhp) diesel A4 2.0TDIe, average mpg now sits in the mid-60s – a figure most superminis cannot emulate.

It is also one of several revised A4s that escape road tax altogether due to low CO₂ emissions, while the Benefit in Kind taxation for company car drivers is just 13 per cent. And yet the car does not feel emasculated by its eco-friendliness.

On the other hand, there is plenty to tempt those who still want their executive model to be sporting too; the range flagship S4 Avant quattro (£39,865) for instance, accelerates hits 62mph in just 5.1 seconds and comes with a smooth shifting double-clutch S-tronic auto gearbox, with paddle shifts on the wheel for fast manual changes.

With a silky 333PS (330bhp) 3.0-litre six-cylinder petrol engine, it is a car that would be both practical and exciting to own.

Not so sure about the pumped up looking 177PS (175bhp) 2.0-litre diesel Allroad model I drove though. At £31,375 it looks a pricey way to suggest it might use its quattro all-wheel drive to go places its lower slung sisters might not.

Little in large works for Insignia but has Vauxhall gone too far?

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

DROPPING a turbocharged 1.4-litre petrol engine into its Astra family hatch has been a sensible move by Vauxhall, attracting private buyers who would rather avoid diesel.

But has the Griffin brand gone too far by stretching the same little 140PS (138bhp) engine into the considerably bulkier Insignia family model and, especially, the Sports Tourer or estate version tested here?

Back to back with its 160PS diesel equivalent, this model feels quite light on its feet and refined unless you really put your foot down, though the diesel has slightly more urgent acceleration low down.

Then again, the diesel will cost you about £500 more upfront at list price, even if fuel economy is slightly better.

However, there is a strong argument now for economical small turbocharged petrol engines versus equivalent diesels: the 160PS diesel should average more than 50mpg – the little petrol will be in the late 40s – but you pay more for diesel at the pumps.

So, you need to cover a lot of miles in those early years to claw back your extra outlay on the diesel model and its fuel.

The green argument is not so clear either, because the petrol engine is a new generation low emission type and comes with an efficient start/stop system to drive down CO₂ emissions in congested traffic, meaning it is as clean as the diesel for road tax purposes – both cars sit in Band E (£115/year).

The result of all this is that company car user choosers will probably go for the diesel – private buyers will go petrol.

Looking at the Insignia Sports Tourer generally, it is one of the most handsome load luggers around. If it carried a prestigious German badge on the front too then there would be even more on the road.

DIFFERENT STROKES: A tough choice for any new Insignia buyer will be which engine to choose; the slightly more economical diesel that costs £500 or the petrol version that come with fuel-saving start/stop

Remember that it won the prestigious European Car of the Year award in 2009, a fitting reward for Vauxhall/Opel's British design chief Mark Adams, who has done so much to transform the brand's cars.

Mind you, that sharply tailored estate car rear end means it can't compete for full on cargo capacity (1,530 litres) with its predecessor, the drab and hearse-like Vectra Estate. While the Insignia narrowly beats the old timer for boot space, the Vectra spaceship offered 1,850 litres of cargo space rear seats down.

Then again, Vauxhall has the Zafira and new and classy Zafira Tourer for those needing a convertible van, while German executive marques have already shown that modern estate buyers want style and prestige as well as practicality.

The Insignia is not a leader in the handling stakes, though it is worth checking out the tauter and more rewarding Sport chassis that comes as standard on the SRi line-up – the SE model, as tested, has the more pliant Comfort set-up, which can feel vague and unsettled under pressure.

Inside, the cabin mixes the quality and practicality that Vauxhall has deployed in an attempt to elbow into an 'upper mainstream' club with the likes of Honda and VW, and away from hoi polloi like Renault and in-house General Motors value brand, Chevrolet.

Though I wasn't impressed by the palette of browns and beiges in the test car, the Insignia cabin is a good place to be front and back, with lots of space to stretch out and excellent headroom – this is a big car for the money, provided you haggle against optimistic list prices.

Indeed, you wonder if Vauxhall has tried to fill two sectors with the Insignia, having axed the bigger Omega flagship model it used to offer.

Downsizing of executive style

VOLVO has unveiled its all-new V40 premium five-door, five-seat hatchback.

Inspired by the existing C30 coupé hatch, the newcomer will target executive car-buyers who want to downsize without giving up bigger car luxury.

With Volvo's highly effective DRIVE eco technologies on board the new range should also be tax efficient. Order books open next month, with deliveries in September.

Estate's grace will hit rivals

JAGUAR'S success with its medium-size XF saloon, made it inevitable that it would follow up with an elegant estate to rival cars like the BMW 5-Series Touring and Audi A6 Avant.

Called the XF Sportbrake it will carry a respectable maximum load of 1,675 litres, yet retains the saloon's excellent handling, says Jaguar.

The Sportbrake should be in showrooms by September.

VW's winning combination

VOLKSWAGEN might have solved a conundrum by producing a performance car with exceptional economy.

It's the Polo BlueGT, which has a turbo-charged 140PS (138bhp) petrol engine offering 0-62mph in under eight seconds yet also averaging around 60mpg by deactivating two of its four cylinders during most driving situations, and then firing up when needed. UK deliveries: to be confirmed.

Kia sows the Ceed for its next generation

By Sam Davison

editorial@kosmedia.co.uk

IT WAS only right that Kia's second generation Ceed family hatchback made its public debut at the Geneva Motor Show, ending this weekend.

The original car was created for the European market and built in Slovakia at an all-new car plant, and has since sparked a change in public perception of the ambitious Korean brand.

The Ceed arrived in the UK in 2007, prompting Kia to be seen not just as a value brand, but more mainstream, going on recently to be seen as cutting edge with models like the racy-looking Sportage SUV, plus sharp-suited Rio supermini and Optima family models.

The original Ceed was roomy, well-equipped, well-designed and finished – also launching Kia's unrivalled seven-year/100,000-mile warranty – and a decent drive, with the chassis further tightened at the car's midlife facelift.

Dealers will, no doubt, be offering some attractive packages on the car as they sell off stocks of the original over the next couple of months ahead of the new car's arrival around June.

But what will the new car offer over its predecessor?

For a start, the design this time will have the dabs all over it from Kia's German design meister Peter Schreyer – the man who penned the original Audi TT.

He arrived at Kia just as the Ceed had gone into production, but he has since then gradually displaced what he described as the brand's "neutral look" to a distinctive post-Ceed style epitomised by the 'tiger nose' corporate grille.

LOOKS CAN DECEIVE:

Kia's second-generation Ceed (main picture) has moved on from its predecessor (below) and will be a real threat to top European models such as VW's Golf, Vauxhall's Astra and the VW Golf

The new car will be expected to seriously challenge top European models such as the VW Golf, Ford Focus and Vauxhall Astra this time by delivering top quality handling and ride, as well as the old car's obvious practical qualities and value.

Powertrains have also been upgraded – though the previous car's 1.6-litre diesel was already a marvel – and there will be a dual-clutch transmission like VW's DSG enabling automatic transmission lovers to enjoy all the benefits of slick manual gear selection should they wish.

We can also expect the car to be competitively priced and equipped once more and backed by that stunning warranty – not that it's been needed much, since the Ceed has also proved utterly reliable, making it a popular used buy, too.

The only negative is that Kia intends to continue with the car's silly name, which should be written 'c'eed' and stands for something that nobody, but the most incorrigible car anorak would want to remember.

The five-door Ceed will also be accompanied by a new version of the SW estate model, which also proved a big success story and gained the further accolade of being bought by a hard-nosed fellow motoring scribe – endorsements don't come bigger.

Whether Kia will then follow up with a new version of the sporty three-door ProceeD spin-off has yet to be confirmed.

TERMS & CONDITIONS

ARCHANT KOS MEDIA LTD
TERMS AND CONDITIONS

1. Advertisements will be accepted only on the express condition that the advertiser warrants that the advertisement does not in any way contravene any existing legislation and in particular the Trade and Description Act 1968 and the Consumer Credit Act 1974.
2. It is the responsibility of all advertisers to ensure that all advertising meets all forms of government legislation and Archant KOS Media Ltd (the "media owner") takes no responsibility for liability in errors and omissions to the content of our media.
3. All rates quoted are subject to VAT at the rate currently in force at the time the advertisement appears.
4. All rates within the annual advertising agreement will be rate protected for 12 months from the first date of publication under the signed agreement.
5. Any unsuitable material posted on any website belonging to Archant KOS Media Ltd by the advertiser or any associated third party will be removed or refused. All passwords and security supplied to the advertiser by Archant KOS Media Ltd in relation to the use of the posting of material via the media owner's online administration tool will be the responsibility of the advertiser. The advertiser indemnifies Archant KOS Media Ltd against any damages as a result of misuse of these privileges by either the advertiser or any third party given password privileges by the advertiser.
6. Archant KOS Media Ltd reserves the right to change passwords intermittently to ensure the overall and ongoing security of its websites within the public domain.
7. Copyright and licenses for voice-over/music/photography or film for advertising promotions or otherwise used within the various forms of media in print, online and moving film owned by Archant KOS Media Ltd must have been sought, verified or paid for by the advertiser where applicable. Approval or permissions must have been given by any potential beneficial owner voice-over or music. The advertiser must be able to verify any statements or claims (promotional or otherwise) in relation to their products/services promoted within any of the media offerings belonging to Archant KOS Media Ltd.
8. Where shrinkage of an advertisement occurs for whatever reason, the advertisement will be charged to the nearest full centimetre where it relates to the media owner's printed proof of advertisement. This will NOT apply to full-page advertisements, which remain full pages even after shrinkage.
9. Archant KOS Media Ltd reserves the right to omit or refuse any advertisement/commercial/web content without notice or explanation. In these terms the word "advertiser" shall be construed to include any person or organisation placing an advertisement on behalf of another.
10. A guarantee of insertion cannot be given and the media owners shall not be liable for any loss or damage caused by any error inaccuracy within their marketing content. In no case shall the total liability of the media owner for any error or omission exceed the price charged by the media owners for that advertising.
11. No liability is accepted for any loss or damage alleged to have arisen through delay in forwarding replies to Box numbers, however caused, nor for the loss or damage to any artwork supplied.
12. Claims for any error or inaccuracy in your media messages with Archant KOS Media Ltd must be made in writing to the accounts department within 10 days of publishing.
13. Archant KOS Media Ltd accepts no responsibility for any errors or omissions made on their websites by the advertiser.
14. Archant KOS Media Ltd has the right to cancel the advertiser's annual membership without notice should the advertiser deliberately publish out of date material or content on any of the media owner's online digital platforms. Archant KOS Media Ltd will seek to recover in full all outstanding invoices in relation to the signed annual membership as a result of the advertiser's negligence in this regard and reserves the right to claim damages for any potential vexatious action via the advertiser.
15. Advertisers are requested to check their advertisements after the first insertion. The media owner will not be responsible for any errors on subsequent insertions, which have not been advised to them in writing.
16. A minimum of one month's notice must be given in writing for any cancellation of the signed annual advertiser's agreement. Upon cancellation, all discounts from Archant KOS Media's standard effective media advertising rate card (July 2008-June 2009) will be recalculated and adjusted accordingly. In the event Archant KOS Media's standard media rate card (effective July 2008-June 2009) and will reflect the revised length of commitment denoted by the advertiser's written cancellation. Any surcharges, refunds or costs in relation to the production of the advertiser's TV commercial for the commitment set out within the advertiser's agreement will be met in full by the advertiser as per Archant KOS Media's standard media advertising rate card (July 2008-June 2009). Discounts will be reapplied and any refunds or surcharges will be paid by either party within 30 days of the advertiser's written cancellation. Any other advertising placed must give a minimum of seven days' written notice and any discounts given for series bookings will be forfeited by the advertiser upon cancellation.
17. Seasonal contracts. Your Professional classified advertisements or any uplift advertising within the annual contract with the advertiser will be invoiced in full - at rate card - on receipt of any written cancellation of this contract within the 12-months.
18. All uplift advertisements must be booked in at least three months in advance of publication and will be subject to availability. All dates booked will be on a first-come, first-served basis.
19. The advertiser must agree to the date and time of filming of any online TV advertising commercial supplied by Archant KOS Media Ltd within the advertiser's agreement. (Platinum, Gold, Silver standard of commercial). Should, for any reason, the advertiser not be available at the agreed time without giving sufficient notice (at least 48 hours), Archant KOS Media Ltd reserves the right to charge for any further TV production at its standard published hourly rate should the advertiser still wish to use Archant KOS Media Ltd's production services to complete its TV commercial or photographic imagery included in the advertiser's agreement. The advertiser will approve and accept that there are only two choices of voice-over and music offered by Archant KOS Media Ltd. Should an advertiser wish to use other voice-overs or non-copyright free music it is the responsibility of the advertiser to pay the PHS rights should they be required to do so. Any changes to or failure to approve the TV production by the deadlines agreed between both parties will result in Archant KOS Media Ltd being given permission by the advertiser to replace the TV commercial with pictures or stills from a choice of photography supplied by the media owner until the advertiser can supply a TV commercial produced at their own cost and risk outside of this agreement. The advertiser also accepts and agrees that this action would not reduce the value or cost of their membership. Any cost of changes required to the TV commercial throughout the advertiser's agreement will be borne by the advertiser outside of this agreement.
20. Each advertiser accepts that their ranking and position within Archant KOS Media Ltd's search engine will be equal to those within their category (Platinum, Gold, Silver, Bronze, etc) other than they will be ranked based on their search engine criteria of optimisation within their level (Platinum, Gold, Silver or Bronze).
21. Any delivery claims made by the advertiser or discount vouchers published within the print or online media of Archant KOS Media Ltd and any action as a result of the public or otherwise is the sole responsibility of the advertiser. Any claims resulting from this via Archant KOS Media Ltd must be met by the advertiser.
22. a. All credit accounts due for payment shall be notified to the Advertiser by the 30th day following the date of invoice, in full, to be of the essence. All sums due to Archant KOS Media Ltd shall be paid in time, to the Advertiser shall have no right of set off in any circumstances.
b. In the event that payment is not received by Archant KOS Media Ltd or RBS Factoring by the due date, the media owner shall be entitled to suspend further advertising until payment is received and/or repudiate the contract and make any surcharges for breaking the contract.
c. In the event that payment is not received by Archant KOS Media Ltd by the due date, the media owner reserves the right to charge interest on all overdue balances calculated on a daily basis at the rate of two per cent above the minimum lending rate of National Westminster Bank Plc from time to time in force.
d. Notwithstanding anything in these terms and conditions or implied to the contrary, in the event of the Advertiser ceasing to use the services of Archant KOS Media Ltd (for whatever reason), the whole amount of monies due from the Advertiser to the date of cessation shall fall due for immediate payment.
e. The Advertiser will be liable for all costs incurred by Archant KOS Media Ltd in the recovery of debts not paid by the due date.
f. Payment may be made by cheque, credit transfer, direct debit, cash and any major credit card.
23. Any discount which Archant KOS Media Ltd may have agreed with the Advertiser shall be forfeited in the event of failure by the Advertiser to complete the contract or to meet the above credit terms.
24. Advertising Agency commission will be allowed to those advertisers recognised by the Newspaper Society, but shall not exceed ten per cent and will be subject to the terms of that recognition. This commission will not be allowed if the Advertising Agency fails to meet the terms.
25. All private advertisements and certain categories as laid down by Archant KOS Media (Publishing) Ltd must be prepaid.
26. The Advertiser agrees to indemnify Archant KOS Media Ltd in respect of all costs, damages or other charges falling upon the media owners or any of the companies within the Archant KOS Media Ltd group as the result of any action or threatened legal action or threatened legal arising from the publication of any advertisement or advertising promotion.
27. An order for an advertisement shall amount to acceptance of these terms and conditions, and any condition placed on an order by an Advertiser shall be null and void in so far as it conflicts with them.
28. Copyright in advertisements produced wholly or partially by the media owners belong to Archant KOS Media Ltd. Advertisers may not reproduce such advertisements without the media owner's written consent. All terms and conditions stated above are in place to protect the advertiser, the media owner and the communities they serve within the public domain as well as the beneficial rights of individuals and organisations. Archant KOS Media will endeavour to always act reasonably in applying its terms and conditions. Effective from June 2009.

Competition fuels expectation as Brands braced for BTCC

By Fred Atkins

sports@kosmedia.co.uk

BRANDS Hatch will host the opening round of the 2012 Dunlop MSA British Touring Car Championship later this month in what looks like being one of the most open championships for years.

Reigning champions Matt Neal and Honda Racing will start the year with a brand new Civic, built to the championship's new 'next generation touring car' regulations.

The rules, aimed at lowering costs, have seen grids swell to volumes last seen in the 1990s but they also present new challenges for existing teams.

With a new car to develop, Neal will face stiff competition from team mate Gordon Shedden as he bids for a record-equalling fourth title. In addition, two Civics will be built for the Pirtek team, of which one will be driven by 2011 contender Andrew Jordan.

Meanwhile Neal's great rival Jason Plato moves from Chevrolet to a brand new MG team. The Chinese-owned Birmingham marque enters a brace of MG6 saloons prepared by crack squad Triple 8, winners of several titles in the last decade, including Plato's 2001 championship.

Whilst the partnership is brand new, this pedigree means they cannot be discounted.

Wrotham's Motorbase outfit staged a strong challenge for the title in 2011 and with continuity in their favour, returning lead driver Mat Jackson will be a dark horse for overall honours this season.

The team start the year with a three-pronged attack, with Liam Griffin and promising Irish newcomer Aron Smith backing up Jackson's charge.

Veteran outfit West Surrey Racing have also elected to run three cars, their BMWs now powered by turbocharged engines to match the other frontrunners. Seasoned campaigner Rob Collard will be kept on his toes by fast youngster Tom Onslow-Cole, with Nick Foster retained for a second season.

In addition to the title favourites there are several promising teams and drivers that came on strong last year.

Frank Wrathall was one of the first drivers to take advantage of the new regulations and his Toyota is expected to challenge for wins this season. Rob Austin's Audi picked up pace during the year, whilst Thurrock's AmD Tuning have picked up promising newcomer Ollie Jackson to race their Golf.

Dartford's Tony Gilham will be given a huge boost, driving Shedden's 2011 Civic, so it'll be impossible to pick a winner for any of the three season-opening races.

In addition to the BTCC, there will be support races from the Renault Clio Cup, and fans will be able to follow the progress of Lewis Hamilton's brother Nicolas, the star of a recent TV documentary. Formula Renault UK, Porsche Carrera Cup, Ginetta Juniors and Ginetta GT Supercup are also on the bill for a packed weekend of racing.

Tickets for round one of the Dunlop MSA British Touring Car Championship at Brands Hatch are on sale from £25, with free entry for children aged 12 and under. Racing takes place over the weekend March 31-April 1.

Monza delight and win for Quaife-Hobbs

THE AutoGP season couldn't have started much better for Tonbridge's Adrian Quaife-Hobbs, after he picked up a win and a third-place at Monza at the weekend.

Quaife-Hobbs, 21, wasn't even sure he'd be driving until a day before practice was due to start but after jetting out to Italy on Thursday evening he was third-fastest in Friday's first practice session.

He improved in the second session to qualify on pole in his Lola and after a great start in Saturday's race he managed to build such a lead he was able to pull in for his compulsory pit stop on lap eight and still emerge in first place.

"I really didn't have any idea how it would be starting in this car, as we naturally hadn't had any time to test that prior to the race, but I made a perfect start to hold the lead into turn one," he said.

"I managed to break the tow early on and build up a 2.5 second lead over the first three laps. However on the fourth lap, the gearbox problem we suffered earlier returned, which meant I was losing time in the first sector as I couldn't change up quickly from first to second gear. So I had to really push hard on the rest of the lap to keep the advantage."

Despite those gearbox issues he comfortably held on for the chequered flag, though victory meant that he had to start from the fourth row in the second race due to a reversed grid for the top eight finishers.

"Race two was far more eventful," he said. "I got a good start to hold position but didn't have quite the same pace as I had the rest of the weekend. Despite that we were in a good position to be challenging for a podium finish and when a few cars ahead of me collided, I was in the right place to pick my way through and get third place." The next round of the championship takes place in Valencia.

Kent sign Newman on loan, as Jones' duck is blow to Papua New Guinea's T20 dreams

KENT have signed the opening batsman Scott Newman on a two-month loan deal from Middlesex.

"I am really pleased to be joining Kent for the opening months of the season," Newman said.

"I look forward to hopefully playing regular first team cricket and contributing to a successful start to 2012 for the club."

The 32-year-old left hander made his county debut for Surrey in 2002, before moving to Middlesex in 2009.

In a decade he has scored 8,415 first class runs at an average of 38.77, hitting 16 centuries.

"We are really pleased the agreement for the loan has been reached with Middlesex and we now hope that Scott will do very well for Kent," head coach Jimmy Adams said. "He will join us for pre-season when the squad returns from Antigua and remain with the squad for the whole of April and May."

There was not such good news for wicketkeeper Geraint Jones, however.

The England Ashes hero has switched his allegiance to the land of his birth - Papua New Guinea - and he jetted out last week to prepare for their ICC Twenty20 World Cup qualifiers in the East Asia-Pacific zone.

But in their first match against Afghanistan, Jones survived just six balls before edging a catch for a duck.

His side went on to lose to the war-torn country by six wickets.

The qualifying tournament continues.

Meanwhile, Kent have also announced a five-year sponsorship deal with Maidstone-based company LED Sport Europe, a company who supply permanent and temporary perimeter boards, scoreboards and replay screens.

As part of the deal the LED logo will appear on the players' training kit.

"This new package means that LED Sport Europe will become one of our main club partners," Kent's chief executive Jamie Clifford said.

"They join Spitfire, Cardy's and Demelza as one of the club's major sponsors."

DISAPPOINTMENT: Jones saw his side lose to Afghanistan

Hammer Olly's confidence boosting short-term stay

By Fred Atkins

sports@kosmedia.co.uk

IF Olly Lee is as surefooted on the field as he is off it, the midfielder, currently on-loan at Gillingham from West Ham United, is likely to have a career every bit as successful as that of his father Rob.

Lee speaks with a maturity that belies his 20 years, deftly answering questions about his future. While some loan signings play under sufferance, Lee realises his own ambitions are best served by helping Gillingham's.

"I'd like to help all the boys out and get this club promoted," he said. "I'm here just for a month but the plan is for it to be until the end of the season, so hopefully I'll be here for the play-offs."

Having earned the loan deal following a trial game with Chelsea, Lee made his debut in the 5-4 thriller with Hereford, his 13 minutes on the pitch coinciding with Gillingham's dramatic fight back from 4-2 down.

He subsequently forced his way into the starting line-up as the Gills went on a four-game winning run.

"Confidence is a massive thing in football," he said. "If you have confidence, you play better. If you lose a couple on the spin then the heads go down. If you win a couple then you're looking at the top. At the moment we don't think anyone can beat us."

His first impression of Priestfield is favourable.

"The lads have been brilliant to me since I've been here and I'm really enjoying it," he said. "It's good to be out playing games and getting my face known to everyone. Since Christmas I'd only played two 90 minutes so it's nice to get out on the pitch and show what I can do. There's a great bunch down there."

LEE: Determined to shine at the Gills and help guide his temporary club into the play-offs

The physicality of life in the fourth tier should also stand him in good stead when he returns to Upton Park.

"It's a lot more frantic in League Two," he said. "I played for Dagenham at the start of the season and that seems to be even more hectic than here. It's all long ball there and it's nice to be in a team that gets the ball down and plays it about and the only way is up.

"It's a big part of League Two that it's very physical, you've got to put your foot in and win your headers and so on. That's something I know I have to work on and it's only going to benefit me."

CYCLING

Humphreys powers clear to pedal to victory in road race

HUGO Humphreys won the second race of cycling's South East Road Race League's Summer Series on Sunday, when he jumped clear of his breakaway partner Paul Sewell on the final corner of the circuit, near Benenden.

Nearly a third of the 60-man field failed to finish the race, held over 10 laps of an undulating course that took the riders through Benenden, Cranbrook and Goford.

Humphreys and Sewell broke clear of the bunch with two laps of the 100 kilometre course to go.

The duo managed to build a lead of 30 seconds over the chasing pack before Humphreys, riding for Leeds University, made his move, leaving Sewell, from Bigfoot Cycle Club, around ten bike lengths behind him on the uphill finish.

The bunch splintered on the final climb, with Phil Starr, from the Python Racing Team bringing in a three-man group to claim third place, ahead of Redhill Cycle Club's Dan Mitchell and Scott Webb from PMR racing.

Only 41 riders completed the course, two of whom were lapped twice.

The next round takes place on the Woodchurch circuit on March 25, before the league hosts a race at the new Cyclopark off the A2 near Northfleet on April 1.

The first race of the season took place in Lamberhurst.

Lydden revs up as season opening rallycross venue

LYDDEN HILL will host the opening round of the British Rallycross Championship on March 24.

Local drivers include Canterbury's Ryan Lawford and Sittingbourne's Liam Doran, who is one of the favourites.

Doran, who'll drive a Citroen D3 said: "We've got the best equipment and engineers available and I can't wait to get started."

"Racing in the British championship event gives me the chance to drive the new car on the track where the European championship starts at Easter."

"It's a great test outing because the competitive level in the championship is good enough for us to gauge our pace, but also because there's no pressure or necessity to win."

"I'm not going for the British title so I can use the event as a test for the European season."

Lawford, who'll be driving a Supranational Ford Fiesta owned by British champion Julian Godfrey, is banking on a decent result as he seeks the financial backing that will allow him to compete throughout the championship.

READY: Local star Liam Doran

"I've worked harder than I've ever worked in my life to get to the position where I can race at Lydden," Lawford said.

"I've rebuilt the car with Julian who has included lots of little improvements he'd wanted to make, so I think it will be better than ever."

Lydden Hill, near Dover, will also host the fourth round of the British Rallycross Championship over the weekend of August 26-27. Details: www.lyddenhill.co.uk.

NON-LEAGUE FOOTBALL FOCUS

WITH FRED ATKINS

Don't pay price of ignoring fans

“THE former chairman of a Kent football club once claimed that supporters should be treated like mushrooms: kept in the dark and fed manure (I paraphrase) every now and again.

The internet era now means that's a far more difficult task for anyone trying to run a football club for their own nefarious ends, but the implicit contempt for supporters displayed by the game's authorities is apparent every time a club's future is jeopardised by the actions of reckless or negligent individuals.

The Scottish FA's decision to brand Craig White "not a fit and proper person" to own Glasgow Rangers was a classic case of stable-door shutting.

Whyte's track record was a matter of public knowledge and yet the authorities did nothing to prevent him taking over at Ibrox and therefore have to take a share of the blame for the ensuing financial catastrophe.

This happens so often in football it indicates a systemic problem. Rangers' implosion demonstrates that even the biggest clubs remain vulnerable because the legislation protecting clubs is so weak it may as well be non-existent.

The English FA's "fit and proper person" test is nearly as laughable as the US immigration questionnaire that asks: "Have you ever participated in mass genocide?" and about as effective.

Between 1992 and 2010 a staggering 54 clubs became insolvent.

In almost every case however, the greatest damage is done to supporters and this cannot be measured in financial terms.

Fans who pay to attend matches are repeatedly subjected to lectures about their behaviour and the need to show 'respect'.

Yet the most glaring omission in the Respect agenda is the lack of protection for supporters, who are emotionally tied to clubs in a way that players, officials and administrators never will be.

This is the most vital relationship in the game. Without loyal supporters, lower league and semi-professional football teams would become glorified Saturday and Sunday league sides, playing in front of a handful of relatives - already the reality for some Kent League clubs.

Fans are entitled to ask why the authorities don't take preventative action.

The more plausible explanation is they are an afterthought.

Try finding a reference to supporters anywhere on the KCFA's website. Its Football Strategy 2008-2012 doesn't even mention supporters or fans and in their 2011-12 handbook, there are three references in over 400 pages, two of them concerning crowd control, the other a fleeting acknowledgement of the "sense of ownership" they feel.

For £51 you can order a criminal record check.

Failing this will stop you from working with young footballers, but history warns it won't prevent you from taking over their club.
